Blue Wave Plays Its Part

Several improvements were visible in the "Blue Wave" band this season as it marched approximately 90 members onto the field.

With the addition of Steve Barnett as assistant band director this year, change was immediately noticeable in the percussion section.

Band Director Stanley Stewart said of the new staff member, "This is the first fulltime percussion instructor we've had. He's not only good with the drum line, but he is also a talented arranger."

Clark said, "I enjoy the band more than ever since Mr. Barnett came along. He is an excellent director and has good control of the band."

Clark named control and intense attitudes as two ways that being in a college band differs from the high school band atmosphere.

"And members know they have to play their part," Charles Ridgway of Sumrall said.

Even though members claim that being a part of a college band is more demanding, they also said it can be more rewarding than taking part in a high school group.

"You meet new people from all around ... "
Bryden Atwater

Ridgway said, "You work hard to make the show the best it can be, and that gives you something to look forward to."

Bryden Atwater, a sophomore from Vicksburg, added, "It's a good experience. You meet new people from all around that have something in common because they're in the band."

Band manager Brad Morgan of Hazlehurst collects flags left on the field by the Colettes. The job of a band manager can many times be as demanding as that of the actual members.

Magee's Alise Blackwell twirls a multi-colored flag as a member of the Colettes dance team. The Colettes have become an institution of their own with a history that dates back to the early 1950's.

Color guard member Kim Kennedy of Magee practices her routine on a cool September afternoon in her costume and a sweatshirt. Sunglasses are also a necessity on days when band practice may last for hours.

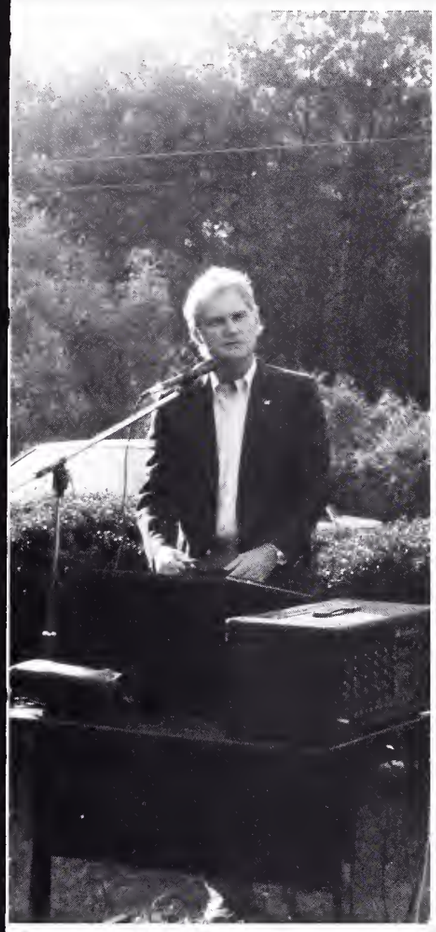
PTK members Brad Ishee and Penny King, both of Wesson, go over the agenda for fall initiation. PTK also holds an initiation during the spring semester.

Paul Ott took part in the PTK Founder's Day ceremony in November. The group paid tribute to the American flag and Ott performed his original piece "That Ragged Old Flag."



New members - Several students made the grades needed to be initiated in the fall. They included John Steinwinder and Deborah Box, both of Wesson; Robert Lundy, Brookhaven; and Jeff Farmer, Wesson.

PTK Signifies Scholastic Achievement

Recognition of achievement is one factor that keeps an individual working to obtain a personal goal, and the Phi Theta Kappa organization applauds students who excel in their respective area of study.

According to PTK member Beth Buckley of Wesson, "Our chapter is a reputable one because it offers so many opportunities along with recognition and notoriety."

"Being in PTK makes you visible ..."

Joe Travis

The Phi Theta Kappa philosophy is based on four hallmarks which include scholarship, leadership, service, and fellowship, and these hallmarks provide members with opportunities for personal growth. They encourage a more balanced individual.

Each year the college's Eta Omega Chapter wins awards associated with each of these four areas.

Russell Ray, PTK advisor, said, "Fellowship is our strongest hallmark."

Todd Cary, a PTK officer from Silver Creek, buries an American flag outside the Oswalt Library. The group's Founder's Day ceremony paid tribute to the American flag.

"We have been constantly working to achieve close ties with other chapters through special projects and events," Ray said.

The hallmark of fellowship does not, however, limit itself to association among PTK members. The group encourages camaraderie with college faculty and administration, political and civic leaders, and other members of the community.

PTK member Joe Travis of Bude said, "Being in PTK makes you visible to those in decision-making positions, whether at the college or in the community."

Becoming a member of PTK is an achievement all of its own. A student must make outstanding grades and be able to maintain those grades throughout their two years at the college.

Students Exercise Right To Vote

As citizens of the United States, people are entitled to cast their vote for their favorite candidates, whether it is to elect the nation's president or to simply pick the college's homecoming queen or class favorites.

The task of marking a ballot seems to be an easy one for those who merely have to put an "X" in the correct box.

However, for those who are running as candidates for these coveted positions, the election process takes on a more complex meaning.

"We have good voter turnout."
Donna Cunningham

Donna Cunningham, secretary to the student services dean, said that several steps must be followed to ensure a candidate has "legally" entered the race.

She said, "First, a student must pick up a nomination ballot in our office which has to be signed by at least 15 students, a faculty member, and the admissions director."

"Some elections, such as the ones for Student Government Association, also require the student to maintain a 'C' average," she said.

Usually, elections at the college are held on Tuesday with run-off elections held on the following Thursday.

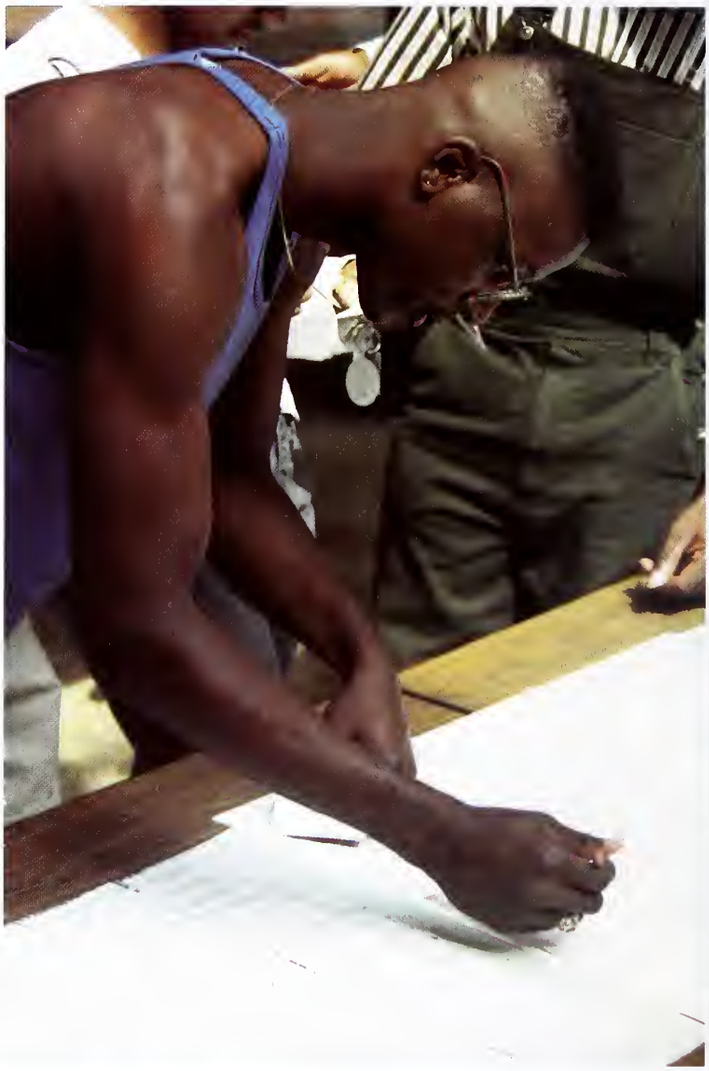
Voter turnout seems to be greater in the elections for homecoming queen and maids, Mr. and Miss Co-Lin, and class favorites.

Cunningham said, "We have good voter turnout. In the past few elections, we have averaged around 380 students out of about 1,000 that are enrolled."

It is the job of the SGA to work the polls during the elections which are held in front of the cafeteria.

"If several of them are running in the elections, we then recruit from outside sources," she explained.

When asked what campaign strategies the candidates use, Cunningham commented that those running usually just put posters up around campus which familiarize the student body with the candidates.



Aaron Owens of Brookhaven looks for his name on the voter registration printout.

A student voter drops his ballot into the locked box. Elections are monitored by the college's Student Government Association which works the polls and counts the votes.

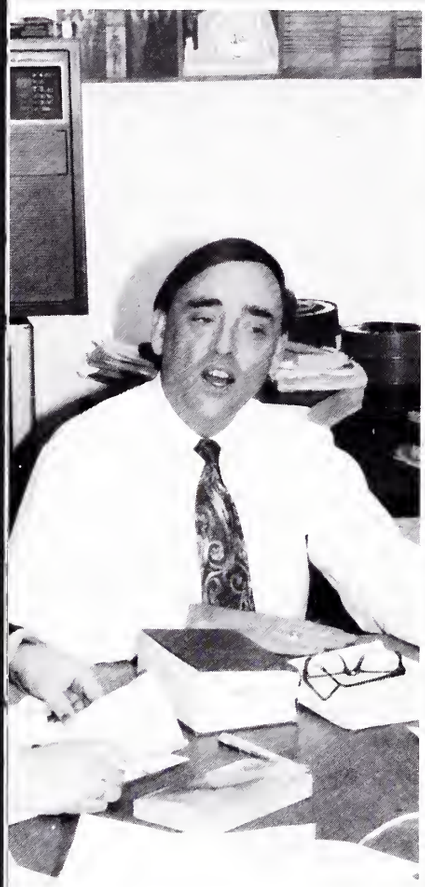
Poll worker and SGA member Kevin Jackson of Magee, seated, looks to see if Chris Terrell and Shaun Walker, both of Brookhaven, are registered voters. Students usually stop by the polls outside the cafeteria after they have eaten lunch.

Which one should I choose? Melvin Roberts of Fayette considers the candidates on the ballot before making his mark.

Eddie Square of Brookhaven, left, and Greg Evans of Bogue Chitto follow the voting procedures. Students seem to come out of the woodwork on election day to vote for friends.

Honors English literature student Malinda Sistrunk of Braxton reads from her textbook. She said she feels "honored" to be in a class where everyone contributes.

Durr Walker, honors literature teacher, discusses the topic for the day. Walker is a master at getting his students to "open up" in class to express their ideas.



Honors students Vicki Ward of Meadville, left, and Kathy Sanders look pleasantly surprised as Mr. Walker goes over a hand-out. Walker makes English literature interesting and many times amusing.

Honors Program Challenges The Mind

Rod Martin, an honors student from Natchez, is a member of this year's Scholar's Bowl Team. He represents the Humanities Division on the team and is team captain.

Some students may consider the intellectual challenges of the Honors Program to be stuffy or boring, but according to sophomore Penny King, "It's actually fun!" Main objectives of the program are to provide academically talented students enriching educational experiences that stimulate the mind and to provide students the opportunity for in-depth study of interesting topics.

The college offers honors courses in English Composition, English Literature, and Western Civilization.

Freshman Malinda Sistrunk of Braxton said of her Honors English Literature class, "I feel honored to be in there because we get a chance to learn not only from the teacher, but from others in the class. We all contribute."

Paige Grant, a freshman from Mendenhall, also expressed positive views about the literature class.

She said, "I like it because it is a small class, and the teacher makes it interesting."

Entry into the program is based on recommendations from high school and/or college teachers and on completion of an application.

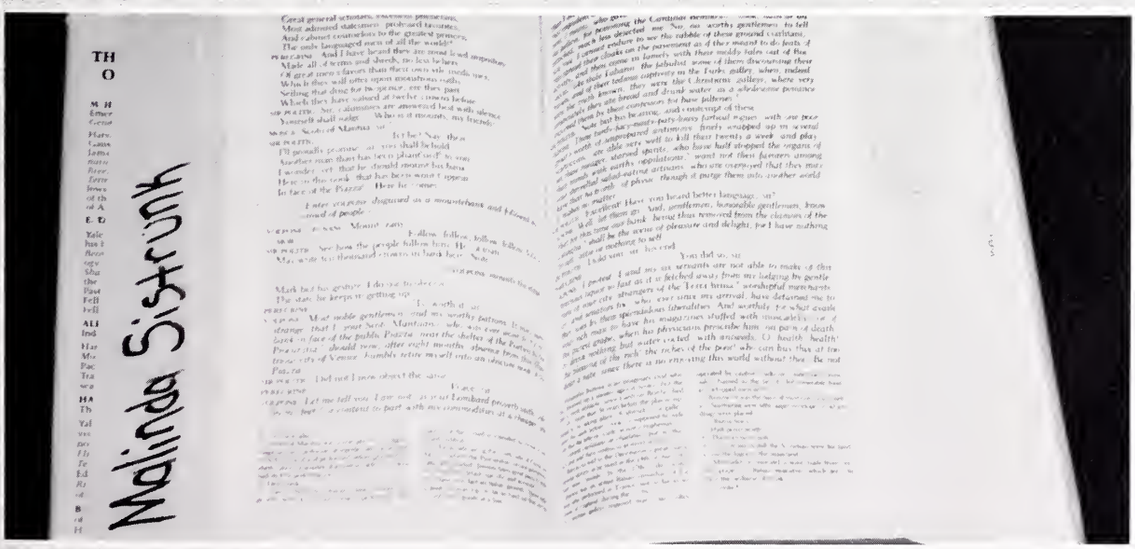
" ... it's just interesting, never dull."

Penny King

King said, "We each have little areas that interest us. We enjoy the discussion - it's just interesting, never dull."

The Honors Program is coordinated by Humanities Division Chairman Durr Walker who also teaches the Honors English Literature course.

"It's easy to learn because of Mr. Walker's enthusiasm," King said.



Honors English Literature students have grown accustomed to having their books open. Being an honors student calls for study time and discipline.

Patrick selected 'most beautiful'

During the Oct. 8 Trillium Beauty Pageant, Jennifer Patrick of Mendenhall captured the title of the college's "most beautiful" co-ed.

Patrick said she kept telling herself throughout the pageant to "just be yourself and don't be too nervous. Have fun with this and don't worry about it."

She must have taken her own advice because Patrick was chosen over 27 other competing contestants.

"Don't be too nervous."
Jennifer Patrick

She said, "I don't really know why I was chosen. I think maybe my dark skin helped me out."

Beauty pageants are not new to her. She was chosen a beauty in last year's contest at the college, and she has been a contestant in various high school pageants.

"When I was younger, I also competed in the Little Miss and Cinderella pageants," she explained.

Pageants are also not new to the Patrick family. Jennifer's 16-year old sister, Natalie, was chosen first alternate in high school last year, and her sister Jessica, 13, was "most beautiful" in junior high school.

Patrick graduated from Mendenhall High School where she was a member of the Hall of Fame. She was a freshman, junior, and football homecoming maid and was elected a sophomore and senior class favorite.

An honor graduate, she was also a member of the cheerleading squad for six years.

At Co-Lin, Patrick serves as co-captain of the cheerleading squad this year, and her major is business administration. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jaris Patrick, Jennifer said her parents have always been very supportive of her participating in pageants.

This year's beauties are Alise Blackwell and Krystie Womack, both of Magee; Brenda Dear, Mendenhall; and Amy Foster, Brookhaven.

Top Ten - Those selected as the ten finalists in the pageant were, from left, Mendez Goldman, Natchez; Stacy Barham, Brookhaven; Brenda Dear and Jennifer Patrick, both of Mendenhall; Krystie Womack and Alise Blackwell, both of Magee; Wendi West, Centreville; Susanne Reynolds, Monticello; Amy Foster, Brookhaven; and Tammy Dickerson, New Hebron.

Chosen "most beautiful" this year, Patrick was also a beauty in last year's pageant.

Freshman Linda Clark of Brookhaven works on a mathematics problem in the Math Laboratory. Clark's progress in the developmental math curriculum will aid her in her future studies.

Connie Burke, developmental mathematics laboratory instructor, looks over some class material.

Freshman Wayne Gholar of Braxton studies with a buddy during a laboratory period. The developmental program at the college combines lecture and lab sessions for the benefit of the student.

Developmental Studies Caters To Individuals

Reading and study skills instructor Martha Lightsey said she has 120 students enrolled in reading classes. This does not include those in mathematics and English.

Successful achievement in college requires proficiency in several different areas including English, reading, and mathematics, and most students have sufficient knowledge in at least two of these three.

However, it is that third area, the one we feel a little less confident about, that may need nurturing and special attention to assure success. To help students conquer their weakness in a particular subject, the college offers developmental studies to help elevate skills levels.

This type of instruction was begun at the school in the early 1980's through federal grant funds, according to Reading and Study Skills Instructor Martha Lightsey, but now college funds operate the program.

Lightsey said she feels the program has been successful, "especially to those students who put forth an effort."

Institutional credit is awarded for developmental courses, and these credits may be counted in the total number of hours required to graduate from the college.

"We teach basic skills so that students can succeed." Martha Lightsey

Lightsey pointed out that these classes are not designed to take the place of regular college-level courses, but to prepare students for entry into the regular course work.

"We teach basic skills so that students can succeed," Lightsey said.

The developmental studies laboratory is located on the first floor of Smith Hall. Here, students improve their basic skills for entry into regular college-level courses.

President Valued As Community Leader

Many college presidents probably don't have time to become involved in activities that aren't connected to their work, but that's not the case with Co-Lin President Dr. Billy Thames.

He finds the time to participate in several organizations and events that will better the community he and his family live in.

Dr. Thames said, "I feel it's my duty to be an active member of the community and to help the area obtain the things that it needs."

"I feel it's my duty ... "
Dr. Thames

This year Dr. Thames was named chairman of the Mississipi Humanities Council. This council is responsible for funding proposals from nonprofit groups for public programs.

"We handle National Endowment for the Humanities grants and usually distribute about $400,000 in funds each year," Dr. Thames said.

Because of his leadership abilities, Dr. Thames has been involved in many varied groups.

He has been in leadership positions with the Lions Club, Boy Scouts of America, Wesson Baptist Church, Lincoln County Industrial Development Foundation, Brookhaven Woodworking Club, Chambers of Commerce in Wesson, Hazlehurst, and Brookhaven, and many more.

"During my lifetime, a lot of people have helped me and have been good to me. This is one way that I can help them," he said.

Dr. Thames said that he also feels that it is necessary to belong to various organizations around the area because of his position at the college.

"I belong to many of these because it's simply expected as president of the college," he explained.

A member of the Brookhaven Woodworking Club, Dr. Thames has been refinishing furniture for his son's fiancee, Susan. The pieces, according to Dr. Thames, are approximately 100 years old.

Dr. Thames is a member of the American Legion, and as a community leader he helped established a war memorial on the college campus. Each year, a Memorial Day ceremony is held at the monuments to honor those who lost their lives fighting for their country.

Associated with the Lion's Club for many years, Dr. Thames has collected pins and other memorabilia from around the world. He has held several leadership roles in the organization, both locally and nationally.

Elected chairman of the Mississippi Humanities Council, Dr. Thames aids others through the distribution of grant funds for public programs. Fund-raising for non-profit organizations is a major concern of his.

'X' Marks The Spot

All the co-eds in Stevens Annex Suite F6 say they have become "really good friends" while attending college at Co-Lin. Surely, that comes as no surprise to anyone since eight girls share four rooms, bathroom facilities, and most of their secrets.

Student life at Co-Lin is full of sharing - sharing study habits, tables in the Library, transportation, meal time, and responsibility.

Melanie Hammill of Poplarville, a resident of Suite F6, said that she has become very close to her friends in the dormitory.

"I know they will be my friends for life," Hammill said, adding, 'I realize after coming to college here that it's just one big happy family."

Hammill explained that when the time came for her to go to college, she wanted to find a place where she could be herself and experience new horizons. She chose Co-Lin for many reasons, one being that her parents attended the college.

She said, "I saw that their experiences here provided them with the knowledge to succeed in life."

"Never does a day go by that I regret choosing this college as my place to be," Hammill said.

Besides learning the ropes of dorm life, student life on campus involves much more. Every opportunity that a student has allows him or her the chance to develop and cultivate new friendships.

For without someone else to share the good times, bum times, ups and downs, and inbetweens of student life, college would not be worth the effort.

" ... it's just one big happy family."
Melanie Hammill

Student Life

Mr. and Miss Co-Lin

Brad Ishee and Karla Adams

Both Adams and Ishee said they felt "honored" to have been chosen by the student body as Mr. and Miss Co-Lin. The two were elected during Who's Who elections.

Two Of A Kind

This year's Mr. and Miss Co-Lin are both driven by a desire to succeed. They both want to accomplish the individual goals they have set.

Mr. Co-Lin Brad Ishee said, "Everyone should set goals and work to accomplish them."

Ishee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ishee of Wesson, is a pre-pharmacy major who also serves as vice president of the sophomore class. He is treasurer of Phi Theta Kappa and is a member of the Trailblazers, tennis team, and Who's Who Among Students In American Junior Colleges.

Miss Co-Lin Karla Adams said that she credits her mother with her positive outlook on life.

"She's always told me to keep my life straight and to get a good education."

The pre-nursing major is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kennon Adams of Brookhaven, and she reigned as this year's homecoming queen. She is a member of the Lady Wolves basketball team, Phi Theta Kappa, Trailblazers, and Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

Serving in several leadership positions, Ishee also finds time to pursue a pre-pharmacy degree.

Football players huddle up in the center of the basketball court during the "Meet the Wolves" pep rally in August. Originally scheduled to be held on the front campus, the rally was moved to Mullen Gym due to rain.

Colettes Princess Carter of Hazlehurst, left, and Melanie Hammill of Poplarville concentrate on their dance moves. The dance group was 16 members strong during the fall season.

I'm A Pepper

Pulling off an event like the "Meet the Wolves" pep rally takes more than the efforts of just one individual. It takes cooperation among several groups on campus.

And, if it hadn't been for a threat of rain in the forecast, this year's rally would have come off without a hitch.

Even though cheerleader sponsor David Smith decided to move the event indoors after careful consideration, the spirits of the groups involved weren't "dampered" in the least.

Cheerleaders, band members, the Colettes dance team, football players, and the student body combined efforts for the best pep rally of the year.

Colette Bridget Smith of Hazlehurst said she likes the part she and other dance team members play.

She said, "I think it's fun practicing and preparing for the rallies. They seem to boost the spirits of the whole student body."

Sophomore Keshelia Calcote of Natchez said she enjoys going to the pep rallies, but that she feels there aren't enough of them.

"We need to increase the number we have throughout football season," she said.

Currently, the college holds three to four per year.

Head Football Coach Randall Bradberry asks for the support of the fans. He predicted the Wolves could lead the south division throughout the season which is exactly what they did.

Freshman cheerleader Stacie Pate of Brookhaven and sophomore Darren McCaffery of Bogue Chitto make the right moves. Cheering precision is something the college squad has no problem accomplishing.

The Hang Out

Students find the Rec Hall a place to talk with friends, to look at members of the opposite sex, and to play a game of pool.

Members of the college staff probably think that students go to the Rec Hall to catch a game of ping-pong or cards, but according to several female students its a great place to do a little flirting.

Angie Dillion of Tylertown said, "I like to go there and check out the scenery."

Angela Funchess of Crystal Springs didn't try to use fancy words for her answer, however.

She said, "I go down there to look at the boys."

There are those, though, who have different reasons for visiting the Rec Hall.

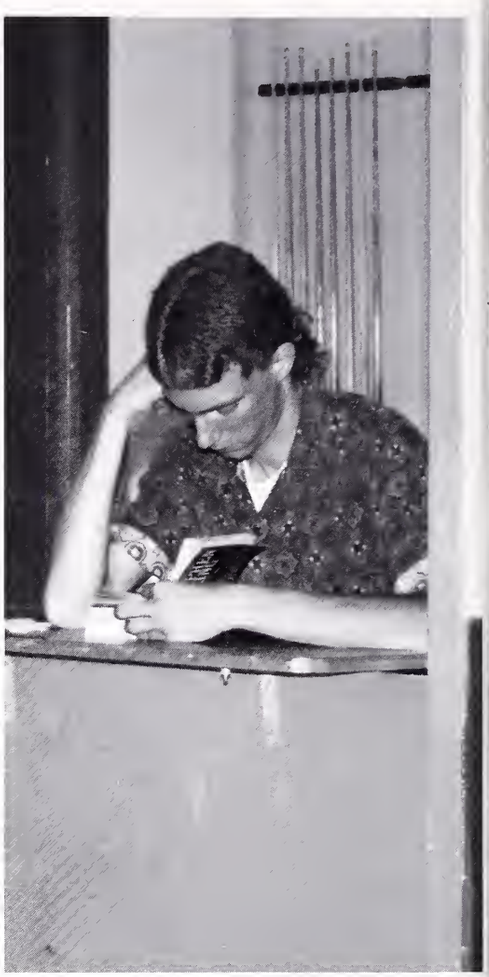
Sophomore Raymond Batiste of New Orleans, La., commented, "First, I like to listen to the girls gossip about what's happening on the fourth floor in the dormitory, and then I get in a little game of ping-pong."

The Rec Hall is considered by most to be the main hang out on campus between classes and at night.

Students get their mail there, and the intramural sports activities are held there.

Video games, pool, football, and other activities take the students' minds off a hectic day in the classroom.

Centrally located in what is known as "the circle," vehicles drive by in front of the Rec to see if there's any exciting activities happening on campus. College security is kept busy at night seeing that cars and trucks keep moving as they cruise by the popular recreation hall.



Work-study student Steve Stricklin of Magee reads a Stephen King novel when things get slow in the Rec Hall. Stricklin keeps an eye on the pool tables during his assigned work time.

Chuckie Allen, a sophomore from Magee, takes his ping-pong seriously as he bites down hard on his tongue. Also, the backward cap and unbuttoned shirt show how intense the game really is.

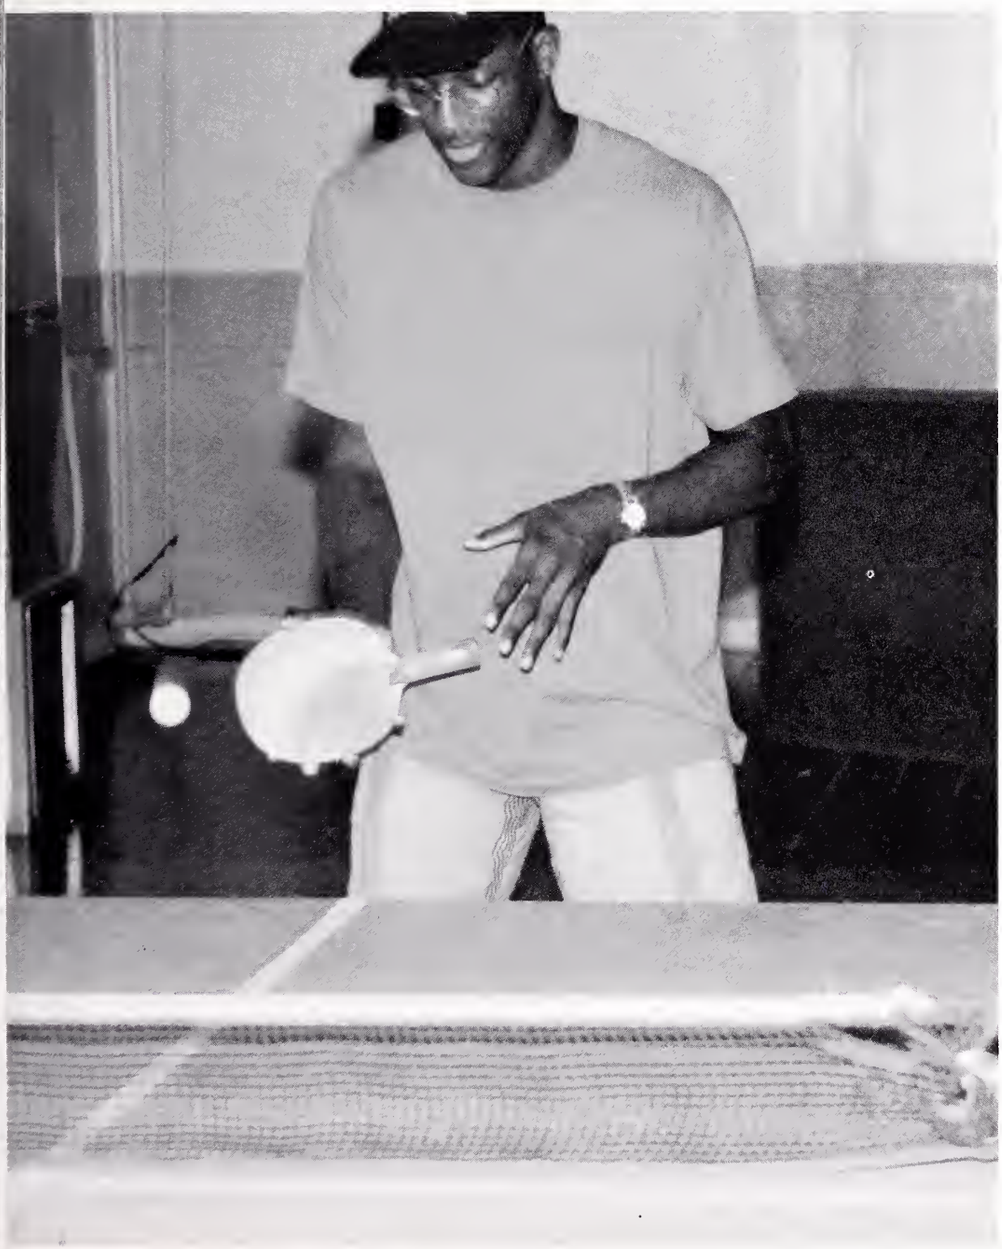
Body Language - Lynette Robinson of Hazlehurst has her eye on someone special in the Rec Hall. Girls admit they visit the Rec to "check out the scenery."



Football coaches are probably looking for their manager George Rosenthal of Natchez who is catching a game of pool before practice. Time flies by when concentrating on a pool game.

Football player Aaron Owens of Brookhaven has to take his mind off football some of the time. Owens' good hand and eye coordination help him with his ping-pong game.

Queen And Her Court - Representing the college on this year's homecoming court were, seated, l to r, Deborah Funches, Monticello; Jenny Ware, Magee; Amy Guillory, Natchez; queen Karla Adams, Brookhaven; Susanne Reynolds, Monticello; and Shannon Cater, Natchez. Standing, Cheryl Clark, Natchez; Alise Blackwell, Magee; Renee Rodriquez, Vidalia, La.; Amy Foster, Brookhaven; and Kimberly Smith, Natchez.

A Sense Of Place

Mississippi Writer Eudora Welty has said that one special quality of all southerners is that they feel "a sense of place."

This holds especially true for graduates of the college who return each year to visit a place that brings back pleasant memories.

"This campus was so dear to those who were students here many years ago," Burlian Walker, executive director of the foundation and alumni affairs, said.

"Even students who have only been away for a short while return each fall for the homecoming activities at the college," he said.

And, what a homecoming it was this year. The day was full of all sorts of activities ranging from class reunions to the football game.

Over 400 alumni attended this year's festivities on Oct. 19, with people coming from several different states to visit the school.

Chosen as female alumnus of the year was Dr. Linda Farris-Smith of Brookhaven, while Dr. Ben Douglas of Jackson was named the male alumnus of the year.

Drummer Steve Thompson of Wesson concentrates on his performance. Homecoming seems to make students want to be their best.

Show A Little Leg

When it comes to showing off their best feature, these students say "it's all in the leg."

A good laugh is always a quick cure for the blues, and audience members at the second annual "Sexy Legs Contest" definitely left the competition with smiles on their faces.

What made this year's event even more entertaining was the fact that more men entered than women. Were they less inhibited than the females or did they just want to get their hands on the prize money?

The contest, sponsored by the college radio station WCLL, had students parading across the auditorium stage in front of a sheet which kept their identities a secret, but which revealed their sexiest assests.

David Westbrook of McCall Creek station co-manager, described the contest by saying, "The judges laughed at more pairs of legs than they applauded."

Judges for the competition were radio staff members and Westbrook was the master of ceremonies. Also, members of the college's band played some rock 'n roll behind the scenes.

Station members started the project last year with the intentions of raising funds, but now the disc jockeys claim they are only trying to give students what they want - a few laughs.

Station advisor and general manager Burlian Walker said that the radio staff members are always eager to participate in new projects and are willing to aid other organizations as well.

He said, "Each year the staff helps out with the District High School VICA competition and with annual High School Day activities."

Judges applauded the legs of Nancy O'Neal of Brookhaven whose legs were voted as best in the women's division.

Jennie Netterville of Woodville, left, who was one of the judges, gives master of ceremonies David Westbrook the final decision. Station disc jockeys served as contest judges.

Some of the male contestants included, from left, P.J. Johnson, Richie Atwater, Randolph Costilow, Man Johnson, Kenny Herrington, Heath McCoy, and Chuck Hefner. Thirteen men entered the competition, while only a handful of women accepted the challenge.

Leg contestant Heath McCoy of Hazlehurst signals for more applause from the audience. Many times audience response can affect the judges' decision.

Colette Christy Smith is a Who's Who member from Monticello. She also works in the science department as a laboratory assistant.

Striking a pose is band member Angie Fisher of Brookhaven. Those selected to Who's Who are chosen for their involvement on campus.

Born To Succeed

Personal achievement is written all across the faces of this year's Who's Who members.

The 1992 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges includes the names of 46 students who were selected as national outstanding campus leaders.

A campus nominating committee included the names of these students based on their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and potential for continued success.

Who's Who member Jill Coon of Ruth said she feels it's an honor to have been chosen to this group.

Coon said, "'It's an honor because it gives me a chance to represent the college."

A physical education major who is an active member of the student body, Coon is involved in the Trailblazers recruiting group and is on the women's basketball team.

"Involvement in campus life is a consideration for Who's Who selection, so I guess that's why I was selected," she said.

Coon joins an elite group chosen from more than 1,400 colleges in the United States and in foreign nations.

Outstanding students have been listed in the Who's Who National Directory since it was first published in 1934, and most have gone on to bright and rewarding futures. Many become doctors, lawyers, administrators, and even teachers - giving back some of what made the credit to society.

These are the people that others turn to for guidance and direction. They're those who will always be in the forefront.

Phi Theta Kappa officer Valarie Price is a Who's Who member form Hazlehurst. Price maintains good grades while also holding down a job.

Selected to Who's Who was campus leader Deborah Funches of Monticello. Funches, a homecoming maid, was escorted by Steve Lipscomb, also of Monticello.

A Who's Who Pair - Brad Ishee of Wesson and Susanne Reynolds of Monticello are both in Who's Who. They also were both part of the college beauty pageant - Ishee as an escort and Reynolds as a contestant.

Getting Good Marks

Class attendance and participation in campus organizations are the major components of most students' lives. Doing well in class and being a part of clubs and groups enables a person to become a well-rounded individual.

Sometimes, however, the two don't mix quite as easily as one might expect. Students begin to say, "There's just not enough time in the day to do all the things I need to do."

According to sophomore Rhoda Patterson of Wesson, only those who know how to manage their time are able to make good grades and enjoy extracurricular activities.

She said, "If you schedule your time wisely and don't overload yourself, it's not hard to be involved in all the things that interest you."

Patterson said students also must know when to tell themselves "enough is enough."

"You have to learn to tell yourself 'no' when you feel you can't handle any more responsibilities," she said.

A Baptist Student Union council member, Patterson is also a member of the English Club, band, and President's Council. She said, "When you're involved with different groups you're exposed to new people and new ideas."

The college offers students a variety of club and organization choices. School scholars are involved in Phi Theta Kappa, athletes join the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, business students enjoy the projects of Phi Beta Lambda, and journalism majors are active members of the newspaper staff.

Numerous opportunities are available to all students looking for involvement.

Academics/Organizations

Donna Baker of Silver Creek, an administrative support services major, looks up some information in the card catalog. The library contains more than 39,000 books in its collection, not including periodical material.

Assistant librarian Helen Mullen makes sure new books are recorded and shelved. The library is constantly ordering new material to keep up with the times.

Bookworms Get Buried Among The Stacks

Shelved in the book stacks of the Oswalt Library is a trip to Never-Never Land - an adventure with Swiss Family Robinson - a journey to Canterbury Cathedral.

Each day during the school year, students walk between the shelves to broaden their knowledge of voyages such as these or to get a broader interpretation of the subject they have chosen to study.

And, according to head librarian Ken Chapman, use of the library seems to have increased over usage of two to three years ago.

He said, "First semester, students even began working early on their term papers, even before I knew it was time for them to start."

Students should have found no problems in finding the information they needed for their papers with over 39,000 books to choose from. This doesn't include the 2,391 bound periodicals which are also available.

Library staff members roam the two floors of the building to help patrons, as do the eight work-study students who split their time between classes and their jobs.

Chapman said, "Probably the best aspect of the library is the hard-working, friendly staff."

Over the years, the facility has become more "user friendly" in that it has upgraded equipment and files.

All books are listed on computers along with periodicals. Typewriters, a copy machine, and study rooms make information more accessible.

Besides serving the college's students, the library also welcomes citizens in the seven-county area to check out books for a two week period.

Diane Lang of Crystal Springs is a regular patron in the library. Biology class keeps her eyes on the book.

Scholar's Bowl team member Lance Murray of Meadville tries to think of the correct answer to the question. Murray, a 3.6 grade point average student, represents the science division on the team.

Murray tries his hand at the answer to a mathematics question raised during an afternoon practice session. Long hours of practice are part of the preparation for a competition like this one.

Buzzing In On The Answer

Academically speaking, it's the toughest contest around for those who like to workout using their minds instead of their bodies.

Scholar's Bowl Team members claim that even though their competition isn't recognized as much as athletics, it's still nice to be quick with the answer instead of being quick on their feet.

Team member Rod Martin of Natchez, said, "Not many people get to represent their school in academics, and it feels good."

Martin, along with other team members, maintains a 2.5 or better grade point average, and he admits he likes answering questions about humanities and fine arts. Others representing different areas include Susanne Reynolds of Monticello, mathematics; Lance Murray of Meadville, science; and Steven Massey of Crystal Springs, social science/business.

Leading the team for five years is Humanities Division Chairman Durr Walker.

Reynolds, the only female team member, said that it's fun being the so-called "weaker sex" of the group.

"In a way, it's more competitive working with an all guy team."

The team traveled to Ole Miss in February for the Scholar's Bowl in which community colleges from across the state competed. Teams were quizzed in four academic areas, and scholarships were awarded to first, second, and third place winners.

Team members at the college are selected by faculty nominations and through a tryout procedure.

Mike McIntyre, business division chairman and economics instructor, explains the current recession to a group of students. McIntyre is in his 21st year at the college.

Economics students listen to instructor Mike McIntyre. Those in McIntyre's classes claim he has some very interesting ways of teaching students about the economy.

Clearing Up Some Business Matters

As chairman of the business division, Mike McIntyre seems to enjoy his work. He "seems" to enjoy it because for the past 21 years he has been teaching students the principles of economics — a course that provides a foundation for any business major.

The business division offers program study in the areas of accounting, business administration, business education, and intensive business training.

According to McIntyre, those who complete these curricula here go on to senior colleges to complete a four-year degree.

"These graduates can then find employment in the fields of finance, marketing, accounting, business management, and several other areas," he said.

McIntyre commented that even with the current economic conditions in the United States and in Mississippi, getting a business degree is still a smart move.

He said, "We now have a more market-oriented world than ever since the fall of the Soviet Union."

Students who complete business courses at the college often return to tell of their experiences after leaving Co-Lin.

"I enjoy seeing our students do well, especially when they are doing as well or better than those who began their first two years of college at the senior college level," McIntyre said.

McIntyre claims he also likes the competitive edge of his job which is working with Phi Beta Lambda business fraternity. The organization competes each year on state, regional, and national levels.

Who You Gonna Call? Circuit Busters

The vocational-technical division is known not only for its instruction in the classroom, but also for the excellent "hands-on" training it provides students.

One particular curriculum which makes sure its students are getting the training they need is the electronics technology program.

The two-year program is designed so that both classroom theory and laboratory experience are combined.

Justin Bass, a freshman from Bogue chitto, said that the instructors first show them the techniques through example and lecture.

"Then they let you learn from your mistakes through hands-on experience," Bass said.

> " ... they let you learn from your mistakes through hands-on experience."
> Justin Bass

Students enter the program for many different reasons, and Bass said his interest in electronics goes back to his childhood.

He said, "I always enjoyed tearing things up and putting them back together again to see if they would work."

Electronics graduates can seek careers in many fields. Some include communications, instrumentation and control, computers, business machines, and avionics.

Those who wish to go on to senior college after receiving a two-year certificate can pursue a four-year degree in electrical engineering.

An ACT composite of 12 or above is required for entry into the course. Instructors are Lester Tarbutton and David Fore.

Electronics technology has been offered at the college for several years and has become one of the most respected of the 21 different vocational-technical programs available. The vo-tech division takes pride in programs such as this one.

They're Cookin' Up Something Good

Many of the hospitals, nursing homes, and schools in the college's district have employed Co-Lin graduates as nurses, teachers, radiologists, counselors, and technicians. However, they also have given jobs to some graduates who like to keep things stirred up and who likes to cut up.

Those completing the professional food service program all have one thing in common. They like to prepare and cook food. Anyone who has eaten a meal in the program's food service laboratory knows that the students are always cooking up something good.

Program participant Veronica Bryant of Brookhaven said she enrolled in the one-year course because "I like to cook, and I love to eat."

"I like to cook, and I love to eat."

While spending three days a week in a lecture class and two days in the food lab, students and instructor Kay Woodrick still find time to prepare meals for various community and college groups.

On a regular basis, they serve the college's education association, the area 50+ Club, teacher workshops, and chamber of commerce banquets.

Woodrick said, "When the students are in lab, they are usually preparing food for events like these."

The professional food service curriculum is designed to prepare students for employment and advancement in the food service industry. Career opportunities include restaurant management, hospital and nursing home dietary management, institutional food service management, purchasing agents, or sales persons for vendors and suppliers.

Most graduates, according to Woodrick, go to work in hospitals, nursing homes, and schools.

The food service program is a two semester course, and students have the option of enrolling a third semester for management training.

Professional food service student Deborah Cameron of Bude is pleased with the way her muffins turned out for homecoming. This year, the morning reception on homecoming day was moved to the program's food service laboratory making the students' jobs much easier.

On The Cutting Edge Of Success

A state license for practicing cosmetology can mean several things to a graduate of the college's one-year program.

Not only can a graduate take the license and find employment with an established business, but the graduate can realize the dream of being in business for him/herself.

The "shear beauty" of it all begins in the college's Fortenberry Building where those enrolled in the program spend a total of 1500 hours divided between theory classes and practical laboratory experience.

Instructor Robin Register said, "This curriculum teaches students the basics needed to become proficient cosmetologists."

> "This curriculum teaches students to become proficient cosmetologist."
> Robin Register

Register commented that many of those who complete the program branch out into several fields. Manicurist, make-up consultant, beauty supply representative, cosmetology educator, and other areas were mentioned as possible employment opportunities.

The college offers cosmetology teacher training to those who are interested in pursuing education as a job opportunity. Those enrolled in this training must successfully complete 750 hours with a minimum of two years work experience.

Register said, "None of our students have ever failed the state boards, and students are required to maintain an average of 85 to stay in the program."

One graduate is currently realizing her dream in cosmetology as an employee on a cruise ship. And, others have gone on to become independent business owners not only in the local area, but across the state.

Program Coordinator Faye Hill, right, talks with student Annette Demyers of Hazlehurst. Program instructors are concerned about the success of their students.

Amanda Handjis of Natchez, right, puts a customer under the dryer. Practical laboratory experience includes approximately 1,270 clock hours.

Eva Bass, left, and Shirley Fuller divide hair into sections for cutting. The college's program boasts a 100 percent passage rate on the state boards.

College freshman Michael Russell gets a "new look" from cosmetology student Nancy Delaney. Co-Lin's program provides a stepping stone for those who want to branch out into a variety of related fields.

Those Deadly Deadlines

Yearbook staff members meet four deadlines throughout the school year.

Nerves get a little on edge in early January as the yearbook staff works to meet a 67-page deadline.

"This deadline is the toughest one of all because it's right after Christmas," executive editor Beth Wallace of Bogue Chitto said.

Wallace said that because of the long hours and hard work that goes into making the yearbook a good one, she and other staff members are especially proud of the finished product when it arrives on campus in early May.

"Only someone who has worked on a production staff like this one can understand the fear and frustration of trying to meet deadlines," she said.

Teamwork, according to Wallace, is the key to putting together an eye-catching book.

She said, "There are those who are good organizers, those who can draw, and those that have great ideas."

"And, of course, a yearbook would be nothing without the work of good photographers," she added.

Most staff members claim being on the staff is difficult, but rewarding.

"The effort and hard work can't be understood unless you've worked on a staff," Wallace concluded.

Associate Editor Dee Dee King of Bogue Chitto looks at a layout to see if it is drawn correctly. King, who has had several art classes, is good at catching errors.

Gayle King of Wesson tries her hand at drawing a layout. Concentration is the key to getting it just right.

Life's Full Of Choices

Making choices in life seems harder as people get older, but the decisions were tough for a group of youngsters who visited the "Pumpkin Patch" in October.

Located in Brookhaven, the "Pumpkin Patch" is a field owned by Mr. Wayne Wallace who places the pumpkins there each year for area children.

Barbara Garrett, child care program coordinator, said the outing to the patch teaches the kids to make their own choices.

"They took their time in picking out the right one. Then when we got ready to leave, many of them wanted to change their minds and go back for another one," Garrett said.

After bringing the pumpkins back to the center, college students in the child care program decorated their pumpkins with funny faces.

Garrett said that the patch is visited each year by youngsters all around the Brookhaven area including kindergarten and grammar school age children.

The college's child care program continually works to instill values in children that they receive from their parents.

First Place Display

Phi Beta Lambda gets top dollars in homecoming display competition.

Members of Phi Beta Lambda aren't always business minded. They have some creative instincts too.

Nu Kappa Chapter took the top prize in this year's homecoming display competition Oct. 19 with their sign "Co-Lin and Phi Beta Lambda ... The Place to Be in the 90's ... A Partnership in Excellence."

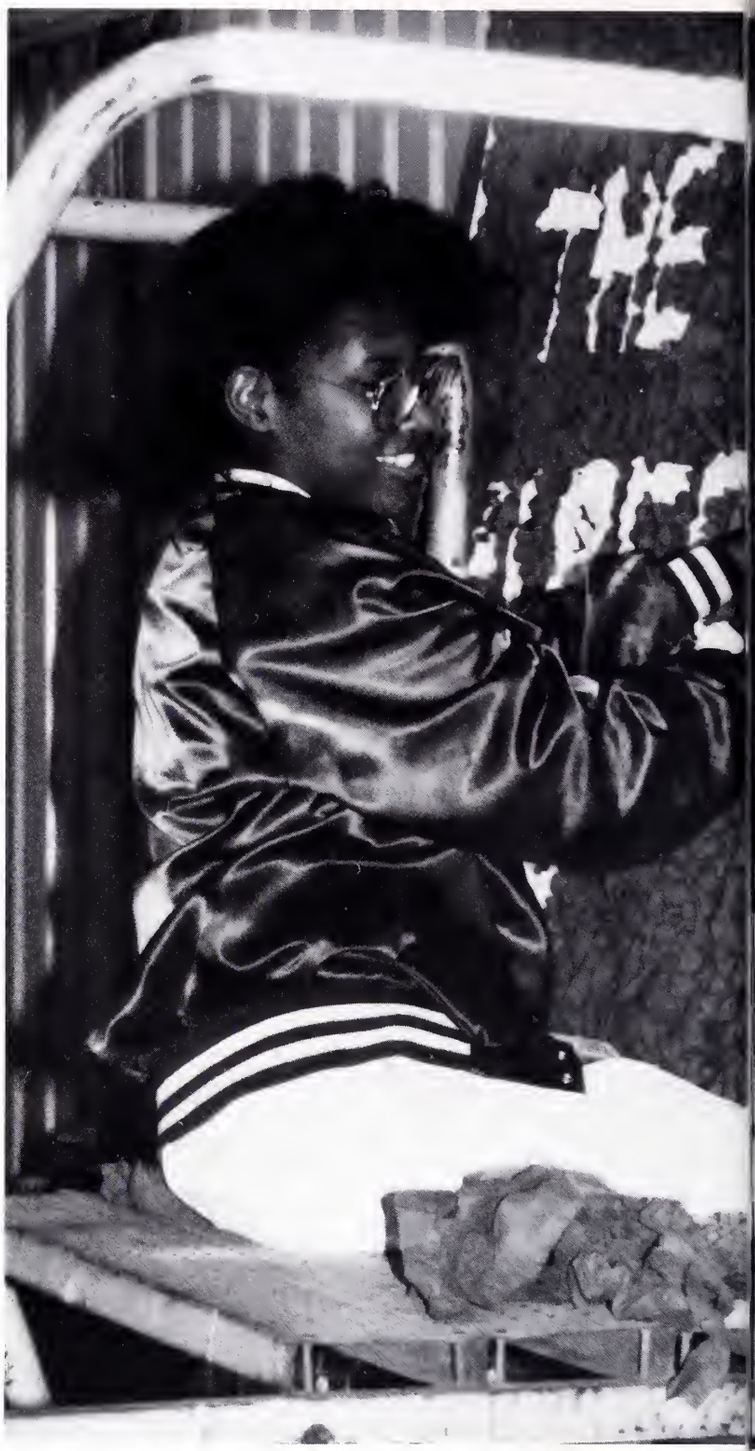
According to President Jackie Ferguson of Brookhaven, "The writing was in white against a blue background with a red border. Centered in the display was a torch projected from a circle of yellow."

Ferguson commented that the club couldn't have won without the help of several members working together.

"We also had one member, Donna Baker, who brought cookies and other junk food to keep our adrenaline flowing," she said.

Club members knew they had hit on a good idea in the beginning for the display, but according to Ferguson, "Members took the initiative to improve the design with unique ideas while actually working on the display."

The club received a $100 prize for their efforts.



Rose Johnson, PBL secretary, puts the finishing touches on the display Friday morning. The designs were judged on Saturday morning.

Rose Johnson of Roxie, top, and Donna Baker of Monticello add more paper.

PBL won the competition with their theme, "Co-Lin and Phi Beta Lambda the place to be in the 90's ... A partnership in excellence."

Another Opening, Another Show

Sojourners share the Co-Lin spirit through song and dance.

"Many people may think that being in a group like this is all fun and no work, but they're wrong," Sojourner Jenny Jaudon of Wesson commented about her involvement with the musical group.

She said, "We practice a lot and have to not only sing well, but dance well too."

Jaudon did admit, however, that she enjoys her participation with the other performers.

"I like to sing and to meet people who are interested in things I'm interested in, and this group is very 'harmonious,' " she replied.

The Sojourners spend most of the school year traveling throughout the college district and performing at area high schools. They also entertain at various civic functions and have a spring concert. This year's music has included a variety of familiar favorites including "Your Mama Don't Dance and Your Daddy Don't Rock N' Roll," plus "Sweet Georgia Brown" and "Another Opening, Another Show."

High schools on their year-round stops include Franklin County, Magee, Lawrence County, Wesson, West Lincoln, and many more.

Drummer Chuck Hefner of Hazlehurst adds some rhythm to one of the group's musical numbers.

New Recruits

Trailblazers look for "personality people" to join their forces as college recruiters.

Some big shoes have to be filled each year as sophomore Trailblazers graduate and the search for new members begins.

Why are the shoes so big? Trailblazers are one of the most visible groups on campus, and they aid the college in recruiting new students. They also work with special events on campus such as High School Day and Explore Co-Lin First.

Applicants for vacant positions with the organization are taken through a selection process which includes a luncheon with other Trailblazers, a faculty committee interview, and a video taping session.

Pat Young, Trailblazer advisor, said, "Sometimes we have 60 or 70 applicants for 20 openings. Most of them would make excellent members, but we just don't have that many slots available."

Besides luncheons and interviews, other criteria for selection include individual personality, hometown, and field of study.

Officers for this year's group include Susanne Reynolds, president, Monticello; Jill Coon, vice president, Ruth; and Anita Benton, secretary, Mendenhall. Good leadership has made this organization one of the best.

Director Alan Cross says a few words to the audience during a choir performance. The choir usually holds two concerts for the general public, one in the fall and one in the spring.

Sing For Joy

Ask alto choir member Nicole Walters why she sings, and she'll simply explain "because I like it."

That's also the reason that other students on campus join the choir each week day at 1 p.m. - they all just want to sing.

Oh, now, they will admit that it takes a little practice to get the right sound, but when they get to perform it's worth the effort.

Walters said, "We have plenty of chances to show what we have learned in front of other students and the general public."

The choir performs at least five times each semester during recitals, seminars, and at seasonal concerts.

According to Walters, any student can join the group, and she says Director Alan Cross makes rehearsals fun.

"The choir is a good public relations tool for the music department. Hopefully, it encourages students to want to participate in the choir or to become more interested in music," she said.

It seems that singing brings out the best in people whether as part of a choir or just riding down the road humming to the radio.

No Music, No Fun

Transmission difficulties cause WCLL-FM to abandon the air waves first semester.

Just a few weeks into the fall semester, the campus radio station WCLL-FM began having problems, and future disc jockeys were turned away from the microphone until the first of December.

Station transmission had dwindled down and little reception was heard from the station when listeners turned on their jam boxes.

The problem, discovered by college instructor and station engineer Lester Tarbutton, was that a co-ax cable midway up the transmission tower had a wet connection to the antenna. As a result, power was depleted.

Students connected with the radio station anxiously awaited the return to the air which seemed to be delayed week after week.

Michael Russell, a station disc jockey from Baton Rouge, La., said, "It's been kind of boring when we're off the air because it's a fun place to work and to hang out."

Several students sign up each semester to learn the basics of becoming a station disc jockey, and many who graduate from the college go on to pursue careers in broadcasting.

Parade Of Stars

Band marches to a beat that includes pep rallies, ballgames, parades, and concerts.

A college likes to show off its best and most recognizable features, and Co-Lin has always taken pride in putting its band in the spotlight.

The band seems to be included in almost every function taking place on the campus, whether it be homecoming, civic club meetings, parades, or even banquets.

Band member Bryden Atwater of Vicksburg said, "When you've got something good you need to show it off, and that's what Co-Lin does with the band."

The "Blue Wave" even got to participate in the governor's inauguration parade in January - an opportunity that doesn't come along very often.

The band also entertained crowds at football games in the fall. They played a variety of music ranging from upbeat rock tunes to slow and mellow love songs.

The band opened with the combination of "Breaking Up Is Hard To Do" and "You Are The Sunshine Of My Life." Then they stepped up the tempo with an arrangement of the Rolling Stone's smash hit "Satisfaction."

Other selections of the band included a Buddy Rich tune titled "Channel 1," Tower of Power's "What Is Hip," and a closing piece called "Since I Fell For You."

Band Director Stanley Stewart said of this year's group, "I've had many good players from all across the district."

On Your Mark ...

... get set, go! Go is exactly what the athletic teams do throughout the entire school year, from early August until the last day of class in May. Football, basketball, baseball, tennis, golf, and softball players, as well as the coaches, give 100 percent year round.

Also giving their all are those seldom seen, but greatly appreciated student managers and trainers who work behind the scenes for their respective teams.

When asked what inspired him to be a trainer, he said, "I did it once, liked it, and then attended training camps during the summer."

According to the Wolfpack trainer, keeping a football team in good physical condition isn't easy. His job includes treatment to prevent injury and treatment of injured players.

A trainer since his freshman year in high school, McGowan, said, "The best part of my job is dealing with the players."

McGowan and other football managers and trainers know there's more to the game than big guys in shoulder pads tackling each other.

Also, basketball managers have tough job to do. They are willing to perform any task the coaches ask them to do. These duties may include anything from keeping statistics to washing sweaty uniforms.

Some managers even take it upon themselves to accomplish more than the expected. Men's basketball team manager Claude Allen of Roxie is responsible for getting the fans off their feet during games.

Always On The Defensive

Defense was a key factor as the Wolves advanced to the state playoffs.

In early August, praise was given to the offensive line as being the team's strongest asset, but as the season got underway it was the defense that kept the college on the winning side of the scoreboard.

The Wolfpack finished the 1991 season with a 6-4-1 overall record and advanced to the state playoffs for the sixth time in the last seven years.

Defensive end Marty McWilliams of Magee said that the college's defense has a reputation of performing well each year.

"We have lived up to what was expected of us. Our defense works hard to be the best in the state," he said.

Outside linebacker John Larrys of Hazlehurst agreed with McWilliams about the consistency of the men on the defensive side of the ball.

"The defense, as a whole was strong. They kept us in a lot of games," Larrys said.

A snow storm in Senatobia and the Rangers of Northwest froze Co-Lin's chances of advancing to the state finals as the Wolves came home with a 36-10 loss. Co-Lin beat Pearl River in the final game of the regular season to clinch the berth in the state playoffs as the south division's second place team.

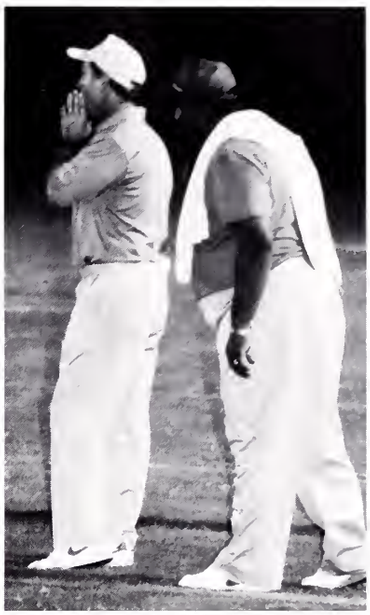
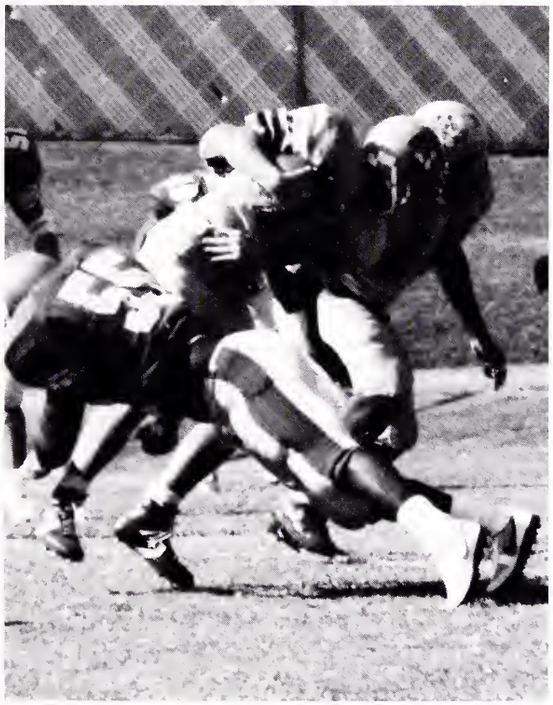
eff Smith, a 5'11"-190 running back from Brookhaven, finds no holes in the Gulf Coast Defense. Offensive linemen Ja Ja Dawson and Herman Kemp, along with tight end Mitch Holloway, try to help Smith.

Wide receiver coach Charles Sutton, right, provides insight into the situation on the field for head coach Randall Bradberry.





Calon Yeldon, a 5'11"-225 inside linebacker from Clearwater, Fla., gets the initial hit on the Bulldog quarterback. Yeldon is a defensive leader for the Wolfpack.

Pregame Exercises - offensive lineman Bubba Wilson of Natchez uses kicker Greg Scoggins for a prop during pregame stretches. Players go through these same motions before every game.

There's No Place Like Home

Out-of-staters manage their lives away from home, family, and friends.

Being an out-of-state football player wasn't easy for a group of young men who came to the college for one main reason - to play football.

Some came from as far away as Kentucky, while others made the trek from Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, and Alabama.

These players weren't ashamed to admit that it was hard trying to get an education, playing football, and being away from family and friends all at the same time.

While they were required by the coaches to maintain good grades and to stay in good physical condition, they also had to deal with the realities of being away from home.

Calon Yeldon, an inside linebacker from Clearwater, Fla., said, "I'm not crazy about being away from my home, but it's my second year here and I'm getting used to it."

Tight end Leroy Jackson of New Orleans, La., explained that making the adjustment was good for him, but that he worries about his family.

"Sometimes I feel different, afraid, and worried. I worry about my family members," he said.

One factor that made the transition easier for the players was the coaching staff.

Wide receiver Scot Harris of Nashville, Ga., said, "The coaches here are nice, and I enjoy playing for a group like these guys."

All agreed that even the people in the town of Wesson were nice to them and tried to make them feel at home.

Cha-Ching!

Wolfpackers bounce back from last year's forgettable season to form a well-balanced team worth remembering in '92.

Basketball fans were glad to witness teamwork in this year's men's team, something they couldn't quite pinpoint in last season's squad.

And sophomore forward Bud McKnight said that attitude had a lot to do with the success of the team.

"We get along well with each other both on and off the court, and that makes a big difference. Everybody's friends with each other," he said.

McKnight also credited head coach Paul Johnson with the fact that the team produced a winning campaign this year.

McKnight said, 'We have to do the work but Coach Johnson is our motivator."

Besides having the right attitude, the Wolves also seemed to be a stronger and more physical team than that of the previous season. The Wolves couldn't be anything but physical with several players reaching heights between 6'5" and 6'7"'.

McKnight, one of the tallest team members at 6'7", averaged 16 points per game, while also grabbing 10.5 rebounds per game. Height, however, didn't affect the shooting percentage of 6'0" point guard Calvin Westley who led scorers with 17.3 points per game.

McKnight said he also thought that the addition of freshman forward Damon Daniel to the starting five was beneficial to the team.

"Damon has been a big asset."

Bud McKnight, a sophomore forward, averages 16 points per game for the Wolves. McKnight returned to the team this year after a three-year venture in the U.S. Army.

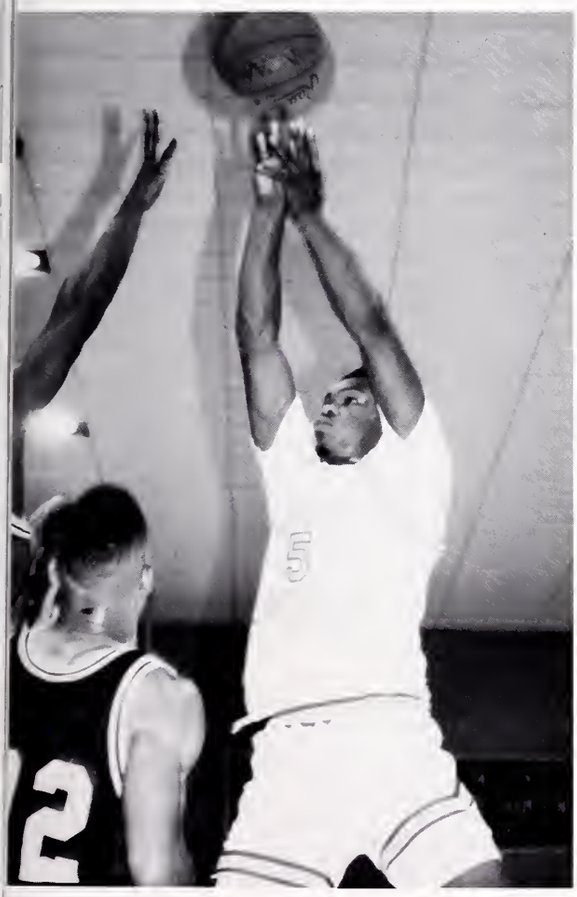
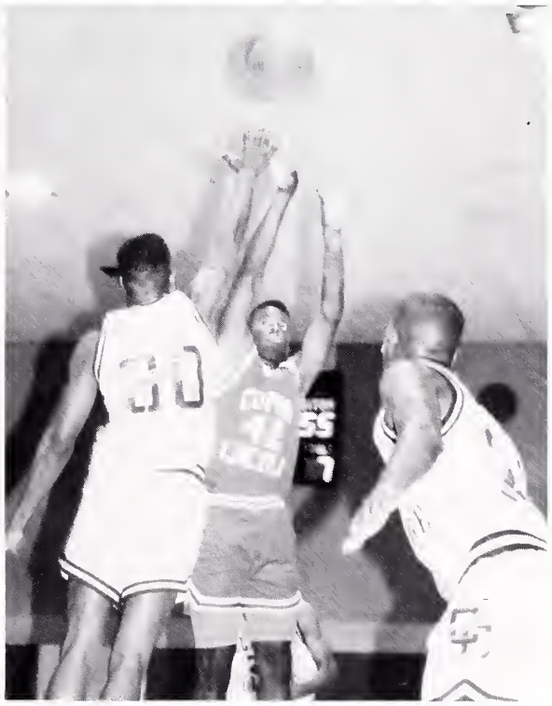
Calvin Westley, a guard from Houma, La., shoots a jumper from the outside.

Freshman Darren Johnson releases a shot over the Clarke College defense. The Wolves hit 48 percent of their field goal attempts.





Freshman starter Damon Daniel puts in 11.6 points and gets 6.7 Rebounds per game for the Wolves. In high school, he was chosen most valuable player.

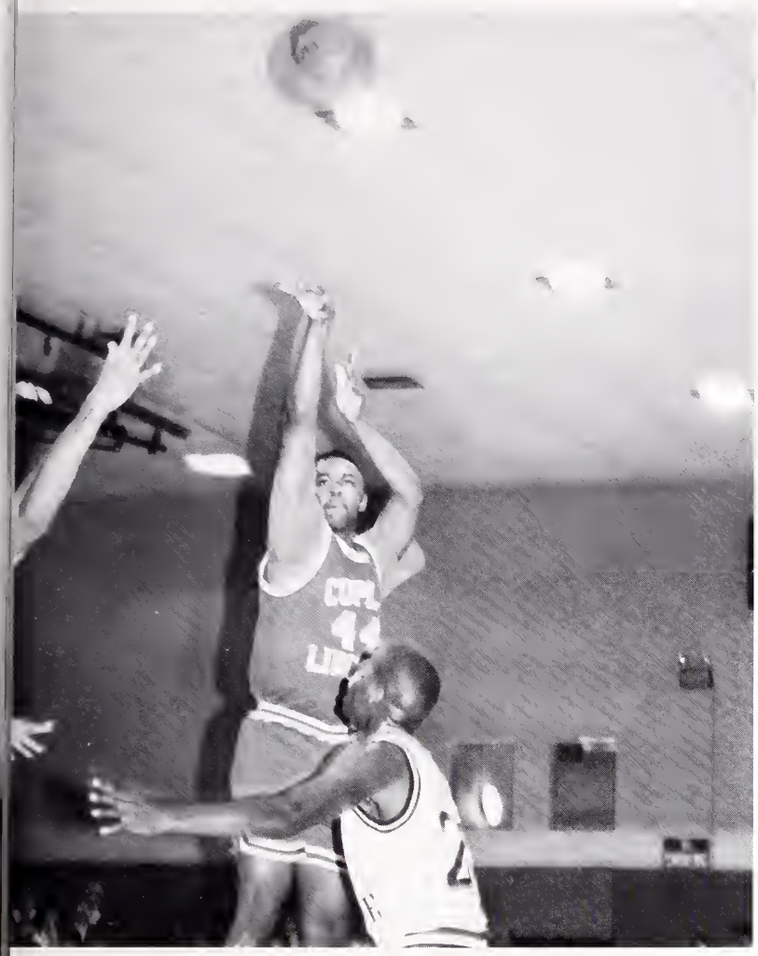
Westley Knows Winning

When it comes to scoring, Wolves depend on the ability of their point guard Calvin Westley.



uard Greg Evans makes it look easy as e lays in two over the Clarke defense.

From Terrebonne High School in Houma, La., point guard Calvin Westley brought with him something that the Wolves basketball team and Coach Paul Johnson needed — the ability to score from almost anywhere on the court.

This year, Westley lead the team in scoring with over 17 points per game. And, he wasn't selfish with the basketball either as he compiled an assist average of 7 per game.

Westley also doesn't speak egotistically about the success of this season's team.

"Everybody plays hard, and our combination on the court works well," he said.

The sophomore began playing basketball at a very young age, and he said that one of his uncles taught him what he now knows about the game.

"He played at the high school where I played. I watched him and he inspired me," Westley said.

He admits, though, that right now getting an education is the most important thing to him.

"Education is first," he said, "then comes basketball."

Bud McKnight has no problem shooting over the defense. The 6'7" forward is one of the tallest team members.

Sophomore Todd Ross of Natchez does a good job in the guard position.

Chris Terrell of Brookhaven is known for making 3-pointers. His quickness also allows him to get inside for easy lay-ups.

One of the highlights of the season has been the all-around ability of Damon Daniel. Daniel, a 6'4" forward, is an out-of-stater from Memphis, Tenn.

Rebuilding???

What was supposed to be only an average season for the Lady Wolves turned out to be much more.

When the women's basketball team returned to campus from Christmas break they found themselves in much better standings than they had anticipated at the beginning of the season.

At the start of the school year, even optimistic head coach Gwyn Young wasn't speaking with much enthusiasm.

Young said, "We're basically starting from scratch, and we've got several spots to fill."

However, opinions about the team took a turn for the better as the Lady Wolves began winning game after game, and as the team found themselves once again contending for the south division title. What most fans had called a "rebuilding" year for the ladies had suddenly turned into a season full of victories.

Sophomore player Anita Benton of Mendenhall, who averages 7.6 points and 5.8 rebounds per game, commented, "The team is doing well because of our desire and will to win. We knew it would be hard on us having to find four new starters, but our team is working hard."

Benton added that the team takes one game at a time and concentrates on what has to be done.

"Each game is a new mission to us. Coach Young believes in us. He's not only our coach, but he's also our friend," Benton said.

Coming off the bench to do a good job for the ladies are Karla Adams, left, Allison Sasser, Jill Coon, and Ruchelle Showers. They also provide the moral support needed in games that go down to the wire.

Head coach Gwyn Young explains what has to be done to win.

Forward Barbara Peyton gets up in the air for a quick jumper.

Clarke College is no match for Cheryl Clark and the Lady Wolves. Clark, a 5'8" freshman, came off the bench to help the team with the win.

Leading the team in assists, point guard Megan Riebock can also shoot the ball well. Riebock averages 7.8 assists and 13 points per game.

Let's Play Team Ball

Lady Wolves work together to form a solid team that can't be broken under pressure.

"Unselfish" is the word Lady Wolf Denise Warren uses to describe the women's basketball team of 1991-92.

Warren, a sophomore forward/guard from Slidell, La., said, "We all play team ball, and just one person doesn't try to score."

Whatever the formula, the combination has been a good one for Warren and her teammates. Warren, who stands at 5'9", has lead the team in scoring this season with over 16 points per game. She hasn't been shabby on the boards either, bringing down around 8 rebounds in each game.

The Louisiana native said she first began to play basketball at school in the fourth grade, but that it was her uncle who sparked her interest in the sport.

"He used to take me to the park, and he taught me a lot of what I know."

Warren also credits professional Michael Jordan as an inspiration.

No matter what the reasons may be for each of the team members' success, together they have produced a consistent and winning ball club.

Pearl River was no match for Co-Lin forward Denise Warren who has lead the team in scoring throughout the season.

Head Coach Gwyn Young gives detailed instructions to his team.

Freshman Barbara Peyton tries to get off a shot as a Meridian player works to block her view of the goal. Peyton is a freshman guard from Monticello.

Again They're Nationally Ranked

Missing last year's state title by one shot, this year's tennis team "wants it all."

At the beginning of the spring season, Tennis Coach Mike McIntyre was crying "Wolf-less," "Wolf-less" as he found himself with only three varsity players. To make matters worse, preseason national rankings found his team in the No. 12 position, and he needed at least three more players to qualify as a team.

Luckily, McIntyre came up with the right numbers to form a team, and now he's much more confident about the season's outlook.

He said, "It's going to be a real challenge, and it's certainly going to be an interesting season."

McIntyre is depending on sole team veteran Brad Ishee of Wesson to be a team leader. Also named by the coach as freshmen additions are Dave Robison of Loyd Star and Robbie Penn of Monticello. Other team hopefuls include Kenneth McMillian, Brookhaven; Byron Sharp and Alan Taylor, Natchez; Greg Panzica, Chris Terrell, and Shaun Walker, all of Brookhaven.

This team is following in the footsteps of an impressive 1991 squad which posted an 18-1 record. Their one loss ended the juco circuit's longest-ever dual match victory string at 68 consecutive wins dating back to April of 1988.

Recruiting problems exist, according to McIntyre, because juco tennis in the state is not recognized as a scholarship sport, because of a bare-bone budget which requires students to pay many of their expenses, and because of poor court facilities.

Veteran Hurlers On The Mound

Experience and good attitudes bring baseballers to home plate.

With half of the starting pitching rotation returning from last year, the college baseball team began it's season with experience on the mound.

Head Coach Steve Blackmon said of the pitchers, "They're providing the experience that's needed for this group to have a successful season."

Baseball players also claim that teamwork is a key to having a winning year, something the team missed out on in the spring of 1991.

Sophomore right fielder Amie Green of Magee said, "In order for our team to be the best, we must work together, motivate each other, and have good attitudes not only on the field, but wherever we are."

Veteran pitchers providing leadership this spring are Bubba Matherne of LaRose, La., Tom Dickinson of Brookhaven, and reliever Bryan Jackson of Natchez. Four sophomore outfielders, and a returning first baseman and catcher have the "know how" to possibly make this the best season the Wolves have ever had.

Mentioning his new crop of freshmen, Blackmon said, "Recruiting this time around dealt not only with finding those who can play the game, but also with choosing those with good attitudes and determination."

"The success of this year's group depends on everyone working together with the right kind of chemistry, on good attitudes, and on good conditioning habits," he said.

Hurling a fast one toward the plate is sophomore Bubba Matherne of LaRose, La. Freshman Joey Durr of Oakvale waits between second and third.

Baseball Team: seated, l to r, Chris Branning, Smithdale; Brian Ratliff, Brookhaven; Brice McLendon, Chris Layton, both of Mendenhall; Mike Duffie, Brookhaven; Scott Griffin, Galliano, La.; Amie Green, Magee; Ron Rushing, Natchez. Kneeling, John Shoemake, Monticello; Vic Brown, Natchez; Brad Ratcliff, Meadville; Todd Cary, Sivler Creek; Mo Davis, Monticello; Joey Durr, Oakvale; Kennon Lavergne, Opelousas, La.; Mark Faust, Natchez. Standing, Pete Dixon, assistant coach; Tom Dickinson, Brookhaven; Ralph Prejean, Carencro, La.; Dusty Trout, Meadville; Bryan Jackson, Michael Durr, both of Natchez; Bubba Matherne, LaRose, La.; Johnny Van Hoose, Monticello; Tige Danos, Lockport, La.; Steve Blackmon, head coach.

Wolves catcher Ron Rushing of Natchez readies for the pitch. Rushing, a freshman, was a member of the South Mississippi High School All-Star Team.

Twist and Shout

Practice and more practice make this year's cheerleading squad worth shouting about.

The potential of the college's cheerleading squad was waiting to explode at the first pep rally in the fall after the group had spent the summer months in intense training on cheers, chants, pyramids, dances, and other crowd-pleasers.

The squad not only showed off what they had learned at pep rallies, but went on to "twist and shout" through football and basketball games.

Co-head cheerleader Jennifer Patrick of Mendenhall said, "ability wise, we are very strong."

This summer, the group received a few pointers from University of Southern Mississippi cheerleader Jody Martin, a former Co-Lin squad member, and according to Patrick, "He was our coach and a good advisor."

Members of the squad are chosen through a tryout selection process in which outside cheerleaders and sponsors, usually from senior colleges, come in and rate candidates on score sheets. Scores are given in the areas of enthusiasm, voice, cheering, form, and gymnastic ability.

Male members of the squad go through an interview process and are judged on physical strength and personality.

Cheerleader sponsor David Smith said, "We recruit members from all across the seven-county district, and this year six of the seven are represented."

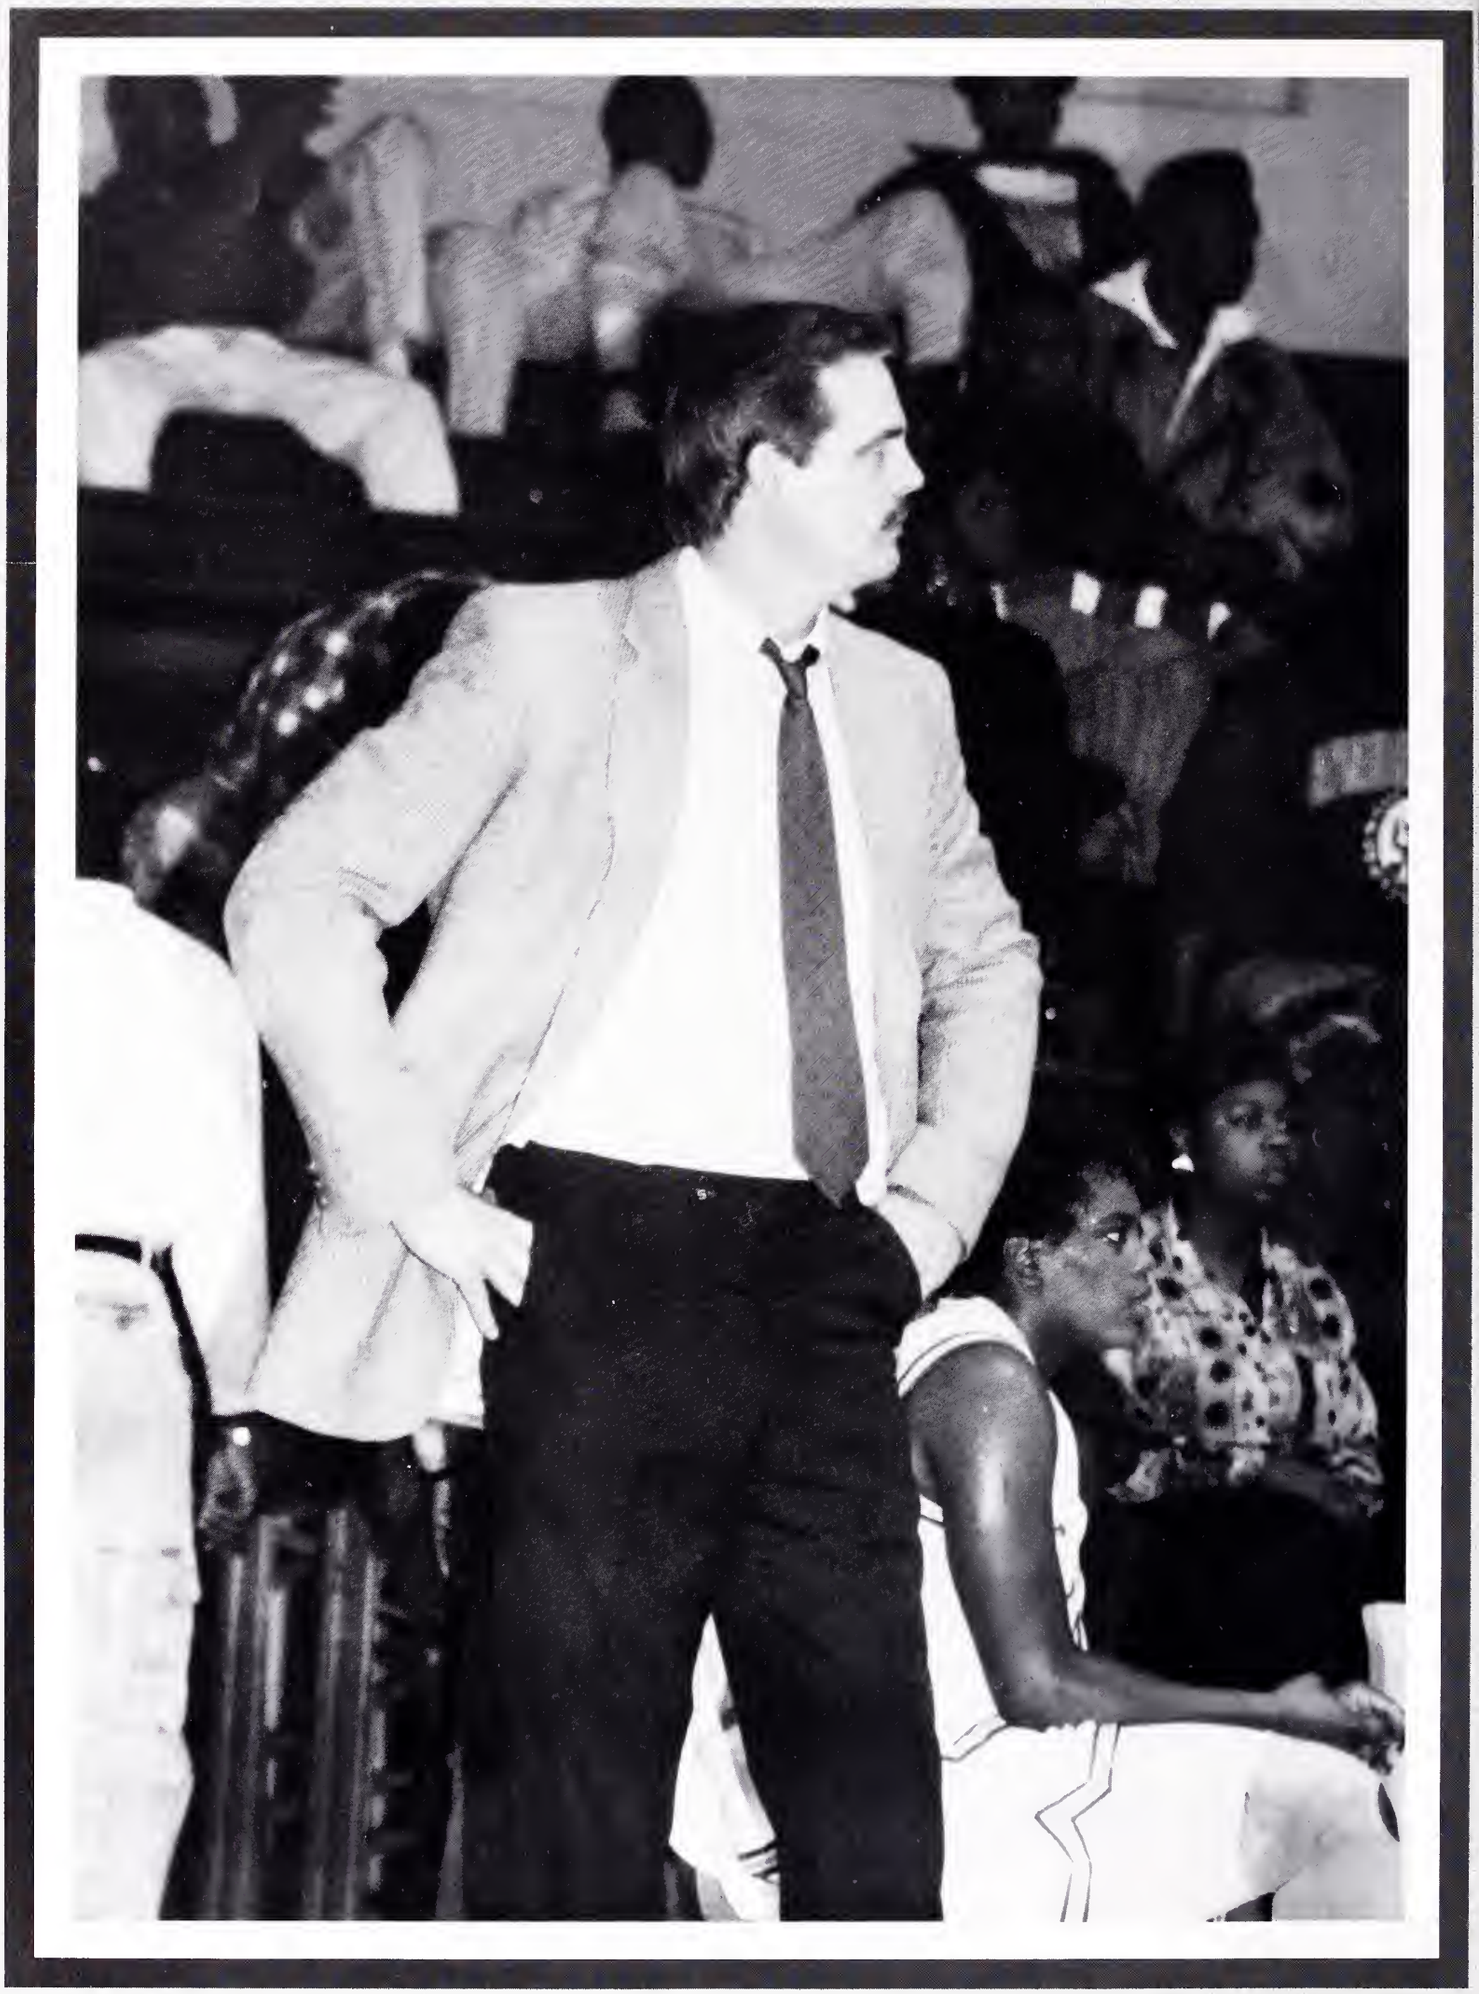
Give her a Whirl - Sandi Duncan, co-head cheerleader, takes to the air as the men wait for her return to earth. Physical strength is one characteristic male cheerleaders must possess.

Male cheerleaders have a tough time deciding whether to cheer or watch the football game.

Wolfpack cheerleaders are, kneeling, l to r, Scott Ham, Natchez; Chuck Owens, Brookhaven; Darren McCaffery, Bogue Chitto; Russ Fowler and Clay Rich, both of Brookhaven; Lance Case, Wesson; and Albert Williams, Brookhaven. Standing, Sandi Duncan, Monticello; JoAnn Allred, Bude; Staci Pate, Brookhaven; Jennifer Patrick, Mendenhall; Amy Foster and Robyn Johnson, both of Brookhaven.



Mark My Words

Many words pop into the minds of those asked to describe heir feelings about Co-Lin. "Close to home," "a friendly atmo-phere," and "quality instruction" are all used to summarize the ollege's reputation as an educational institution.

However, the words "people that care" come to mind for hose who have witnessed an environment that's full of personal ttention.

Students and employees at the college work with each other nstead of against each other to make the best of a two-year ducation.

"The people make Co-Lin a unique place to attend college," aid sophomore Jennifer Patrick of Mendenhall.

One thing that Patrick said she likes bout the people is that a lot of the stu-dents are already friends before they get o the college. They attended high schools located close to each other.

"Also," Patrick said, "It's easy to meet new friends here because of it's size."

"Faculty and staff members go out of their way to help you too," she said.

People that leave Co-Lin and return to the campus on different occasions always comment about the personal attention of instructors and about the friendships they made while they were students.

And, if one quality of the college had to be named as the most unique, there is no doubt that most would, in one way or another, mention "people."

"The people make Co-Lin a unique place ..."

Yearbook Dedicated In Bradberry's Memory

Thoughts of the advisor and friend everyone admired are still in the minds of students, employees, and community members.

"She was one classy lady," was the way Rev. Mike Carr remembered Co-Lin Counselor Ann Bradberry as he addressed the congregation at Wesson Baptist Church on July 22.

Mrs. Bradberry's sudden death at her home on July 19 shocked not only loved ones, but the entire community.

College President Dr. Billy Thames said of her, "Mrs. Bradberry was a lovely person, a talented person, and she did a very fine job in carrying out her assignments at Co-Lin. She was dedicated to her family and helped people that she came in contact with."

She definitely was an asset to the college, providing students with the counseling services they needed. She also served as an advisor for the college's recruiting group, the Trailblazers.

Mrs. Bradberry, who lost her life at the young age of 40, was also an intelligent and educated person. She was a graduate of Cleveland High School and Mississippi State University where she studied library science. She then did her masters degree work at the University of Alabama before doing additional studies at Delta State University.

A memorial fund has bee established in her name at th college by friends and family.

Mrs. Bradberry was the advisor for the Trailblazers recruiting group. Here, she talks with organization candidates about membership in the group.

Always busy - She was known for being well-organized, precise, and as a perfectionist.

High School Day in March of 1990 was one of Mrs. Bradberry's favorite projects. Recruitment of new students was one thing she especially enjoyed about her work.

Dressed to a Tee - Whatever the occasion, she had a style that fit into any situation.

In the spring of 1990, she moved her office from the Mutton Building to the Henley Building to assume duties as counselor.

Making conversation was never a problem for Mrs. Bradberry. She was not only interesting to talk to, but also to listen to.

The Governing Body

Trustees make important college decisions straight from the heart.

When the college's board of trustees meets on the first Thursday of each month, they discuss matters that affect the fate of the entire institution.

And, the good thing about the work that these people do, is that they make decisions because they have personal interest in the college and because they are concerned about the successful survival of Co-Lin.

Martha Sinclair, personnel committee chairman said about the board's role, "We try to monitor the feelings of the community and bring the desires of the people before the whole group of trustees. Then we make decisions based on that information."

Sinclair also mentioned that the college's trustees enjoy their work because they can associate with the people in the college's seven county district.

'It's a good feeling to know you're making a contribution in the educational realm," she said.

This "governing body" takes their work seriously because they know that the policies they set are going to have an impact on students as well as college employees. They not only make their decisions with their heads, but also with their hearts.

Below board officers are, from left, L. G. Young, secretary, Franklin County; Dr. J. H. Stribling, chairman, Lincoln County; and Sidney Parker, vice chairman, Simpson County.

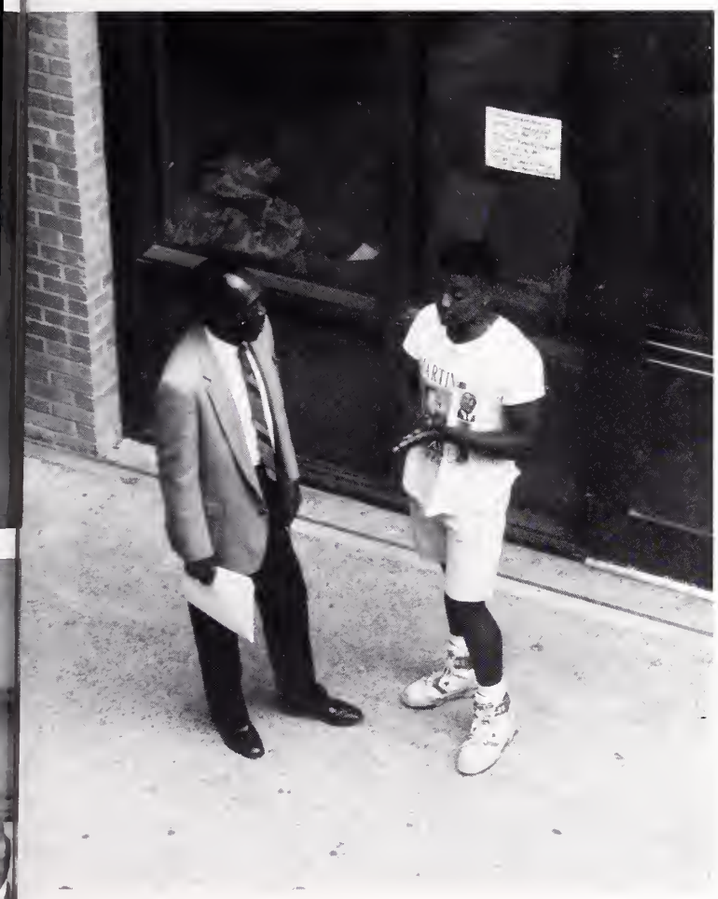
Board members are first row, left to right, Marilyn Brown, president's secretary; Maxine Williams, Copiah County; Jackie Poole, John Dow, and Dr. J.H. Stribling, all of Lincoln County; Dr. Billy Thames, college president; Harold Luther Smith and Tommy Sasser, both of Lincoln County; and Walter Nelson, Adams County. Second row, Dale Sullivan, Copiah County; L. G. Young, Franklin County; Jim Lambert, Copiah County; Thelma Taylor, Adams County; Eugene Bates, Jefferson County; Gerald Horn, Adams County; John Henley, board attorney; and Dr. Howell Garner, college dean. Third row, Daniel Smith, Jefferson County; Melton King, Adams County; Don Cagle, Copiah County; Charles Burke, physical plant director; Martha Sinclair and Steve Wells, both of Lincoln County. Fourth row, Jack Burt, Copiah County; Ray Ishee, student services dean; Bobbie Collier, Copiah County; Larry Jones, Franklin County; and Louis Dugas, vocational-technical dean. Fifth row, Travis Thornton, Natchez Campus associate dean; Cliff Reed, Simpson County; and Jim Kyzar, business manager. Not pictured, Sidney Parker, Simpson County; Dr. Melvin Buckley and Frances Doss, both of Adams County; Henry Russell and Ken Bailey, both of Lawrence County.

Adams County Trustee Melton King converses with Vocational-Technical Dean Louis Dugas before a meeting begins. Trustees are eager to keep up with happenings in both the academic and vo-tech areas.

Executive Committee Member Martha Sinclair of Lincoln County pours herself a soft drink during a break. Both the executive board meeting and the regular meeting can run long when there are numerous items on the agenda.



Jefferson County Trustee Daniel Smith stops on campus to visit with a student. Trustees are concerned about the welfare of students, especially from the counties they represent.

If Homecoming Had A King ...

... it would definitely be Alumni Affairs Executive Director Burlian Walker.

As this year's homecoming festivities ended, everyone again praised Burlian Walker for the excellent job he does with the event each year.

However, it's no surprise to anyone that everything went so smoothly because Walker has been putting on the annual festivities for 13 consecutive years.

Just ask Walker about a former student who attended the college within the past 25 years, and he can usually recite where the person lives now and what his or her occupation is.

College President Dr. Billy Thames said, "He is Co-Lin, and this college is number one to him. It's his home."

"He knows more about Co-Lin and the history of the college than anyone."

Dr. Thames went on to say that Walker is basically married to his job, and Walker tends to agree.

"It seems like I've been here all my life," Walker said.

"People seem to really respect him," Dr. Thames said.

Burlian not only handles alumni affairs, but also the college's foundation. He keeps several filing cabinets full of information on scholarships, gifts, and donations.

Dr. Garner spends much of his time working on the computer in his office. Semester class schedules, course curriculums, and other instructional information has to constantly be updated.

Dr. Garner, a Wesson Chamber of Commerce member, discusses a leadership project with area community leaders including Carolyn Kennedy, Crystal Springs Chamber of Commerce executive director.

A Rewarding Experience

Finding a fulfilling career may be hard for some people, but college dean Dr. Howell Garner knew he had found the end of the rainbow when he became a college administrator.

Dr. Garner said, "I like working with people and trying to solve peoples' problems - that's what administration is all about."

He not only feels strongly about his role as an administrator, but also about the role that community colleges play in the lives of people in the district.

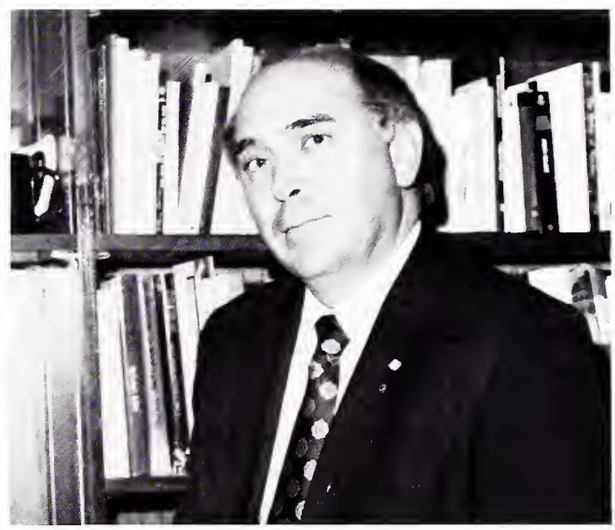
"Our mission is pretty broad," he said, adding, "We provide a foundation for those who want an education."

Dr. Garner named several different ways the college helps others. Providing an education for those right out of high school, for adult students, and for academic as well as vocational-technical students are ways in which the college serves others.

"I think we do an excellent job providing an educational background," he said.

As a comprehensive community college, it is Dr. Garner's responsibility to see that the college offers a diverse range of curricula, from pre-medicine to auto mechanics. This becomes more of a challenge each year because of enrollment increases and state funding.

Dr. and Mrs. Garner's sons, Brad, left, and Justin, are students at Wesson Attendance Center.



Dr. Garner believes in the mission of the college which includes providing students with the highest quality education possible.

Dr. and Mrs. Garner spend as much time together as they can. Even though his job demands much from him, he still finds time for his family.

According to Smith, Buddy has become part of the family. However, he had difficulty persuading his wife and daughter to accept the animal.

"My wife thought I was crazy, and my daughter didn't believe me when I told her I'd gotten a pet pig," he said.

Luckily, Buddy doesn't bite and seems to be gentle.

"He has a lot more patience than some people I know," Smith said.

"I'd recommend the purchase of a pet pig to anyone," he concluded.

Mile Marker

Three staff members who are determined to keep up the walking pace are English instructors Sharon Alexander and Nancy Dykes, and business office secretary Donna Brister.

Alexander is the veteran of the threesome, having been an avid walker for nearly 10 years. Dykes and Brister, though adamant about their exercise routines now, have been walking for only a few years.

Walking is not only important to the three as a form of exercise, but it also has brought out their competitiveness.

Each one has entered walking races and have won awards.

Brister said, "Competition gets your adrenaline flowing and it's exciting."

Mark My Words

Football Referee Alvin Pouncey told Wolves Football Coach Randall Bradberry to "get off the field" in the Sept. 7 battle with the East Central Warriors.

Not only did the referees have to keep the coaches off the field, they also had to break up a bench clearing brawl between the two teams.

Neither team, however, showed much football action in the game where the only points were scored by Co-Lin kicker Greg Scoggins on a 17-yard field goal.

Hall Of Fame

Seven students receive highest honor.

Karla Adams

This year's homecoming queen Karla Adams has several honors to her credit as a member of the student body. A pre-nursing major from Brookhaven, Adams was elected by her peers as Miss Co-Lin. She also serves the college as a member of the Trailblazers recruiting group which goes into the district to encourage others to attend Co-Lin.

Moreover, she is a member of Phi Theta Kappa scholastic society, and she finds time to participate in varsity sports as a player for the Lady Wolves basketball team. Because of her involvement on campus and her outstanding grade point average, Adams was also named to Who's Who Among Students In American Junior Colleges.

Lyn Johnson

Lyn Johnson of Hazlehurst is a pre-nursing major at the college who is an active participant in several prestigious clubs and organizations. She enjoys her involvement in Alpha Omega science fraternity which correlates with her field of study, but she also works with the English Club.

With an impressive grade point average, Johnson is an active member of Phi Theta Kappa scholastic society. A nontraditional student from Hazlehurst, she was selected as a member of Who's Who Among Students In American Junior Colleges.

Brad Ishee

Elected Mr. Co-Lin for 1991-92, Brad Ishee represents the college in many different areas. The sophomore class vice president is a member of a variety of organizations including Alpha Omega science fraternity and the Trailblazers recruiting group. He also serves Phi Theta Kappa scholastic society as treasurer.

Ishee escorted the college's homecoming queen during the October presentation of the court, and he was also chosen by the Trillium Beauty Pageant contestants as an escort. A pre-pharmacy student from Wesson, Ishee was chosen to Who's Who Among Students In American Junior Colleges.

Wini Martindale

A native of Monticello, Wini Martindale is a secondary education student that serves as president of Phi Theta Kappa scholastic society. Other organization involvement includes recruiting prospective students as a member of the Trailblazers and participating in the Blue Wave band and President's Council.

Martindale is a dedicated member of the Baptist Student Union Council and the Wesley Foundation. She was also among the elite group selected to Who's Who Among Students In American Junior Colleges.

Susanne Reynolds

Hall of Famer Susanne Reynolds of Monticello has spent two years as drum major for the Blue Wave band. She serves as president of the Trailblazers recruiting group, as sophomore class representative, and was chosen as a member of this year's Scholar's Bowl Team.

A homecoming maid, Reynolds is a member of Phi Theta Kappa, Alpha Omega, and the President's Council. The pre-medicine major was also selected to Who's Who Among Students In American Junior Colleges.

Christy Smith

Christy Smith of Monticello has been busy this year leading the college's dance team as head Colette. While making outstanding grades, she also works as a laboratory assistant in the science department where she is double majoring in science and mathematics.

Smith was selected to represent the college as an alternate for the Scholar's Bowl Team, and she was named to Who's Who Among Students In American Junior Colleges.

Jenny Ware

A business major at the college, Jenny Ware leads the student body as president of the Student Government Association. She was elected to the homecoming court and was also chosen a campus favorite by fellow students.

Ware is an active participant in the Trailblazers recruiting group and in the President's Council. She joined the outstanding list of students named to Who's Who Among Students In American Junior Colleges. Ware is a native of Magee.

Perfect Marks

There are those select few on campus who work toward perfection in education, and students who work to maintain a perfect 4.0 grade point average are prime examples.

The pre-nursing major said she became a compulsive learner after being in an "academic desert" for 25 years.

She said, "I'n not really shooting for the 4.0 mark. I just want to be a good nurse."

The 49-year-old mother of two, Johnson said she needed to fill a void in her life after her children became adults.

"I now find a joy in learning. It is its own reward," she said.

Friendly Remarks

A pleasant atmosphere always makes for friendly chatter, and there's no better place for good conversation than a picnic area on the Natchez Trace Parkway.

Football statisticians Lance Moak, left, and Misty Clopton, both of Wesson, discussed the possibilities of the Wolves beating Northeast on their way to the game in Booneville.

The two were riding in college vans packed with cheerleaders, sack lunches, ice chests, and football signs.

The most popular question on the five hour ride into Tiger country was, "When are we going to be there."

After the game was over, the trip seemed to be well worth the effort as the Wolves brought home a victory.

Yard Marker

Quick feet were what wingback Chuckie Allen of Magee used to help him gain yard after yard in the Sept. 26 game against Northeast.

The Wolves weren't sure if their offensive attack would be strong enough to puncture the well-known defense of the Tigers, but the Wolfpack proved they were in Booneville for a victory.

Co-Lin defeated Northeast by a score of 20-14.

An aggressive Wolves defensive also aided in the win. Northeast was forced to go from a ground attack to a passing offense, but Co-Lin forced the Tigers to drop most of their air attempts.

Allen said, "This was probably the first game we played where both the offense and defense had it together."

Needle Marks

Each year the college's Student Government Association sponsors a blood drive on campus and asks students to donate.

SGA Sponsor Ray Ishee said that the organization doesn't get any recognition out of the drive, but that it is an important service project that helps people all across the state.

"I'm surprised at the number of students that come out to give blood. It's always a good number," he said.

Ishee encourages those who have never given blood to come out and donate.

He said, "Giving blood not only saves people's lives, it also makes you as a donor feel good about yourself."

SGA works with Mississippi Blood Services in Jackson on the project.

Spirited Remarks

Football season brought out the spirit in everyone during the first few months of the school year, and those voicing their opinions the loudest were the cheerleaders.

Remarks were heard around the entire campus about the enthusiasm in this year's squad, and about overall ability of the group.

Also, noticeable was the representation on the squad from across the college district.

Cheerleader Sponsor David Smith said, "We recruited members from all across the seven county district and this year six of those seven are represented."

Mark The Beat

For two years, marching band drum major Susanne Reynolds of Monticello has kept the 90 members of the band "on the beat." It takes a good leader to work with such a large group, and band director Stanley Stewart said that he has had one in Reynolds.

Stewart used these words to describe his drum major - responsible, conscientious, agreeable, and always on time.

"She has gotten along well with all the band members, not just with a few of them," Stewart said.

Reynolds was leader of the band at Lawrence County High School before coming to Co-Lin, and Stewart said that as a sophomore, she has been even better at her work than as a freshman.

"She's been as reliable as anyone I've worked with," Stewart added.

Stretch Marks

Football players know there was a lot more to the 1991 season than simply playing the games.

Daily practices, meetings, weightlifting, and even exercising were all a part of each day during the fall.

Players started off each practice and game with stretching exercises, and defensive lineman Anthony Knight of Natchez said the main purpose of this conditioning was to "keep from catching cramps."

Leg muscles seemed to be the area that the team focused on the most while doing exercises such as jumping jacks and stretching hurdles.

The Wolves did see a few injuries during the season, but not enough to keep them from reaching the state playoffs.

Marksmanship

Freshman Stacey Bigner of Gonzales, La., thought she was going to get to make her debut as a member of the band's color guard at the first home game on Aug. 31.

However, because of a mishap with another guard member's flag, Bigner missed out on the Blue Wave's first performance.

According to fellow flag corps members, special weights had been sewn into the group's new flags to make them heavier. The weights, though, weren't stitched securely enough.

One weight flew out of a flag and hit Bigner square on the ankle, and after a visit to the doctor, both patient and physician decided it was best that Bigner not perform.

Bigner said she didn't like being left out of the halftime show, but she knew her ankle was thankful.

Library Student Worker Missy Smith of Union Church, right, earned money to go to school on through the college's work-study program, and here she is shown helping commuter Elizabeth Jackson of Brookhaven find a reference on the computer.

The Oswalt Library has nine students each semester who work a few hours each day, while also finding time to attend classes.

Library Director Ken Chapman said that workers have several responsibilities which include shelving books, checking books in and out, and helping other students.

He said, "Basically, they do just about anything that needs to be done."

The student worker system not only is beneficial to the student for monetary reasons, but also to the library staff because of the help the students provide.

Marking The Moment

Todd Cary of Silver Creek helped Vance Cullins of Brookhaven place the lid on a box containing the American flag during Phi Theta Kappa Founder's Day ceremonies held in November.

The flag was later buried at the college's war memorial and a new flag, flown over the U. S. Capitol that same day, now flies at the memorial.

PTK chose to pay tribute to the flag this year because it ties in with the group's study topic "Paradox of Freedom: A Global Dilemma."

Also, during the Founder's Day celebration, Mississippi celebrity Paul Ott gave his rendition of "That Ragged Old Flag."

The event ended with the acceptance of the PTK Margaret Mosal Award by Margaret Ewing Thomas, an alumnus of the PTK chapter.

Making Our Mark On Success

Different people define success different ways. Some people efine success in terms of numbers or amounts. If that be the ase, we at Co-Lin/Natchez can boast of our successful fall enroll-nent.

According to Sandra Davidson, Director of Admissions, "prelimi-ary figures show that we have enrolled 640 students, which is a hirty percent increase over our fall enrollment of last year."

Other people define success in terms of quality or character. If hat be the case, we have several things we can boast about. First e can boast about the quality of instruction our students receive.)ean Thornton remarks that our "instructors are all highly quali-ied."

Furthermore, statistical studies reveal that our graduates who ransfer to four-year universities do as well, f not better, in their academic endeavors s those students who entered these uni-ersities as freshmen and who are now uniors and seniors.

Secondly, we can boast about the latchez Literary Celebration and Elderhostel programs. For the past two years we have successfully co-hosted the Natchez Literary Celebration and hosted the Elderhostel program. Both received the 1990 Governor's Award for Tourism Achievement.

Finally, we can boast about our Special Interest Classes. Through these classes we have successfully gotten people in the community involved to some degree with our college life. Dr. Joey Paul's computer classes attract people from all segments of the community. His student population ranges from Boy Scouts to police officers.

With all that we have going for us, how can we help but define success as Co-Lin.

"It doesn't matter how old you are, you can fit in at Co-Lin."

Natchez Campus

Travis Thornton Associate Dean Natchez Campus

Travis Thornton joined Copiah-Lincoln Community College as Associate Dean in charge of the Natchez campus in July, 1990. Prior to coming to Copiah-Lincoln, he served as Dean of Student Affairs at Mississippi Delta Community College in Moorhead for 19 years.

Dean Thornton holds a Master of Education degree from Mississippi College in Clinton and a Bachelor of Education degree from Mississippi College in Clinton and a Bachelor of Education degree from Delta State University in Cleveland.

He has been an active member in various civic and political organizations and has served as president in many of these organizations. These presidencies include the Mississippi School Counselors Association, Mississippi Junior College Counselors Association, Mississippi Association of College Registrars and Admission Officers, Kiwanis Club of Leland, Rotary Club of Moorhead, and Mississippi Delta Junior College Alumni Association.

When Dean Thornton was asked about his goals for Co-Lin/Natchez, he responded by saying, "Our number one goal is to try to meet the educational and training needs of the Natchez/Adams County area and the surrounding regions. By doing that, we will justify the need for adequate physical facilities to house the academic transfer portion of our school."

"Another goal is to increase overall enrollment, not just for the sake of size, but to grow to meet community needs," Dr. Thorton said.

Dean Jones Gibson Receives Natchez Trillium Dedication

With a gentle smile and soft voice, Mrs. Gibson has patiently taught her students the art of speaking, grammar, literature, and writing and her colleagues at the Natchez Campus of Co-Lin the true meaning of the term "Southern Belle." For her graciousness and her love of teaching, the Natchez section of the 1991-1992 Trillium is humbly dedicated to Dean Jones Gibson.

Mrs. Gibson is a graduate of Georgia State University with a Master of Arts degree in English. She has earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in English from Mississippi State University. She has also completed most of her course work for a doctoral degree at the University of South Carolina. In addition, she has taken classes at Hollins College, Roanoke, Virginia, Millsaps, Memphis State University, and New York University.

Mrs. Gibson has been sponsor for Refractions, the school literary magazine. She has served on the Board of the Mississippi Community College Creative Writing Association and as a chairperson for the Natchez Literary Celebration. Mrs. Gibson is a lecturer for the Louisiana Committee for the Humanities and a co-founder of the Natchez Writer's Club.

Mrs. Gibson is a member of the Colonial Dames of America. Active in the First Presbyterian Church of Natchez, she is church historian and editor of the church newsletter.

An avid skier, Mrs. Gibson also enjoys tennis and camping. At home, she loves needlepoint.

Mrs. Gibson is married to Dr. G. C. Gibson, a retired college professor and department chairperson. She is the mother of two sons, Chip and Stewart Finley and a daughter, Joey Wilson and the proud grandmother of four grandchildren, Sarah Beth and Suzanna Finley and Allie and Tanner Wilson.

Mr. and Miss Co-Lin Natchez

Mr. Co-Lin, Irby Lee Campbell, is the son of Joe and Donna Hardy of Natchez. Irby is a Physical Therapy major. While Irby is busy working as assistant manager at Curtis Mathis, he is on the Dean's List and is active in SHARE. In high school, Irby was a member of the Beta and French clubs, was awarded All District first team center and All Metro first team center in football and voted Most Handsome by the student body. Irby enjoys weightlifting and hunting.

Miss Co-Lin, Shannon Minelle Cater, is the daughter of William E. and Mildred Cater of Natchez. Shannon is a Respiratory Therapy major. She is Secretary/Treasurer of Circle K, Sophomore Representative for SGA, and Sophomore Homecoming Maid. Shannon works part-time at Trace Town Cinema and in her spare time enjoys singing, horseback riding, her pets and her church.

Sophomore Favorites

Gladys Rounds (left), a Business major, received the Annette Donnan Scholarship and is on the 1991 Talent Roster. Iona (Polly) Nettles, a Pre-Nursing major, is President of the SGA, a member of Circle K, and a math tutor. Rachel Cater, working on a general Bachelor of Science degree, is Secretary/Treasurer of SGA, a member of Circle K and the Trillium staff. Juila Michelle Good, a Pre-Pharmacy major, has been on the Dean's List for four semesters. Darlene Fitzgerald, a Microcomputer Information Processing major, is a faculty secretary and is on the Dean's List.

Freshman Favorites

Three Leave Their Mark

Hall of Fame Winners Announced

Sherry Kiser

Sherry Kiser joins with two other Hall of Fame members with a grand point average of 3.32. Majoring in Microcomputer Information Processing, Kiser is on the Dean's List and is listed in the 1991-1992 Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges. Kiser is President of Phi Beta Lambda, one of the most active clubs on campus. She is a Phi Theta Kappa member and was named "Student of the Month" for October 1991.

Gladys Green Rounds

"Busy" describes Hall of Famer Gladys Green Rounds. A Business Administration major, Rounds is on the Dean's List with a 3.65 grade point average and is listed in the 1991-1992 Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges. A 1972 graduate of South Natchez High School, Rounds has been active on campus. She is on the Trillium Staff, a Sophomore Favorite and a member of Phi Theta Kappa. Rounds is also a work study student for Student Support Services.

James Eugene Wright

Co-Lin district 1991-1992 Student of the Year, "Geno" Wright is also a Hall of Famer at the Natchez Campus. The 1990 Adams Christian graduate is majoring in pre-engineering. He has maintained a 3.80 grade point average and was named to the 1991-1992 Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges. Wright is Vice-President of Circle K and of Phi Theta Kappa.

NATCHEZ HALL OF FAME 1978-1992

To be chosen to the Hall of Fame is the highest honor that can be given a Copiah-Lincoln Community College student. Each was nominated in open nominations and approved by a screening committee of fellow students, recommended by a faculty committee on the basis of character, leadership and contribution to Copiah-Lincoln Community College. The three Natchez Campus selections are added to the 30 chosen since the initiation of Hall of Fame in 1978.

Halls of Relief

If you would ask Judy Wiggins, one of our English instructors, to spell relief, we're sure she would spell it R-E-L-I-E-F. But if you would ask most students to spell relief, they'd spell it H-A-L-L, Hall—not as in Hall's Cough Drops, but Hall as in hallway. Whether it is before classes, in between classes, or even after class, the hallways can be found buzzing with students engaged in all types of activities. Students can be found either discussing the answers to a test they have just taken, quickly reviewing the study notes of a test they're about to take, perusing lecture notes they've just taken, scheduling study time with friends, checking assignments and even making a quick phone call to someone special or just catching a quick breath.

Jennifer Jones, left, and Katrina Huseman take time to catch up on the latest news.

Scott Crain tries out his latest come-on line on Sabrina Geraldson. Do you think it's working?

Steve Roberson has his check list and he's checking it twice to make sure his buddies James Keating and Scott White are geared up and ready to tackle classes.

Hurry up and wait! Hurry up and wait! Is this what I came to college for?

Stephanie Presley checks out the card catalog as she searches for material for her research paper.

Loraine Lane and Charles Davis review their Human Growth and Development lecture notes.

Zap, Ping, and it's done, Joan McLemore, librarian, uses the latest technology to record Tony Felton's check outs.

The Library: An Open Book

The library is the hub of the academic setting. Answers to riddles in history, English and math are there — if one knows where to look.

And to help the students look are Mrs. Joan McLemore, librarian, and Carolyn Harper, assistant librarian. They are cheerful, energetic, and helpful at any hour of the day.

The library is a hive of activity at all hours of the day and into the night. Changes in the book check out procedure, thanks to new technology such as the bar code on books and ID cards, have made life a little easier, according to Mrs. McLemore.

But with the increased enrollment, the library has become busier than ever. This is not a complaint, Mrs. McLemore hastens to add. The more (students) the merrier, as far as she is concerned.

Pam Banks, library assistant, can often be found at the typewriter typing book cards.

Get A Whiff Of This

"Sometimes you wanna go where everybody knows your name and they're always glad you came. You wanna be where you can see people are always the same. You wanna go where everybody knows your name."

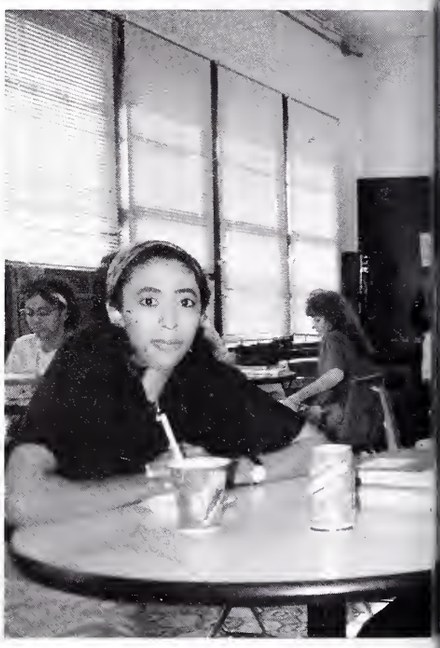
Sounds familiar? Even though this is the theme song for "Cheers," we could easily use it as our theme song for the Hob Nob.

Cheers has its Sam Malone. The Hob Nob has its Gail McGruder. Sam cheerfully serves his patrons ale, pretzels, and peanuts. Even though Gail's menu does not include these items, she will gladly serve you your choice of cola or juice with the special of the day.

Cheers has its television and pool table. The television in the Hob Nob helps students, not only catch up on the latest happenings in the world, it also helps them keep up with what is happening on the soaps and MTV. There is always activity around the pool table. Pool sticks are grabbed and balls are racked as students try to get in that quick pool game either before class or during class break.

Sam is well known to his patrons and he can easily call their names. Gail is known by everyone on campus and she likewise knows her patrons' names. Serving over 100 hungry students a day can be a very exhausting job, but Gail is a pro and does her job with her most gracious smile.

The next time you're on campus and you get the munchies and you want to dine in a friendly atmosphere, drop by the Hob Nob. It is as Sharon Groover puts it, "user friendly."



Guess who Karen Mills and Vicki Wicker like to discuss in the Hob Nob. Their husbands!

Gail McGruder busily prepares meals for the faculty and staff during faculty orientation day and Hope Parker assists by serving as delivery person.

"It's the Pepsi Generation." Just ask Bridget Breithaupt and Gladys Rounds.

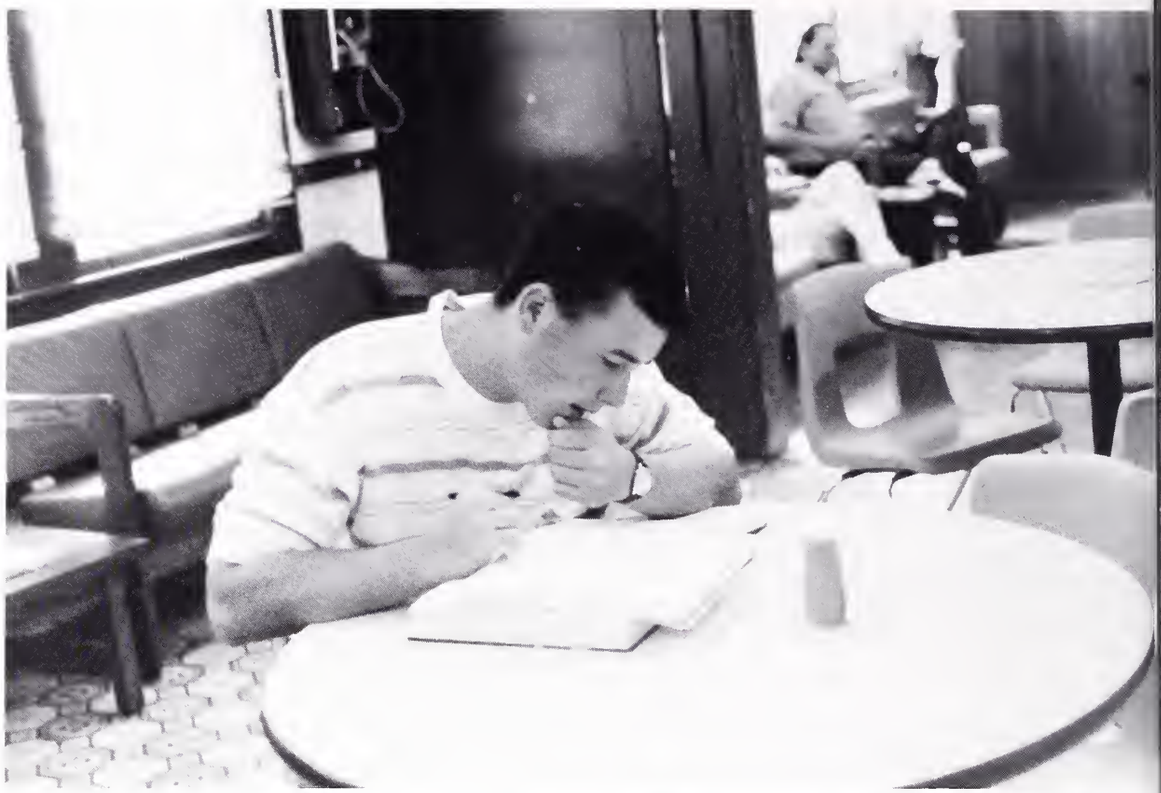
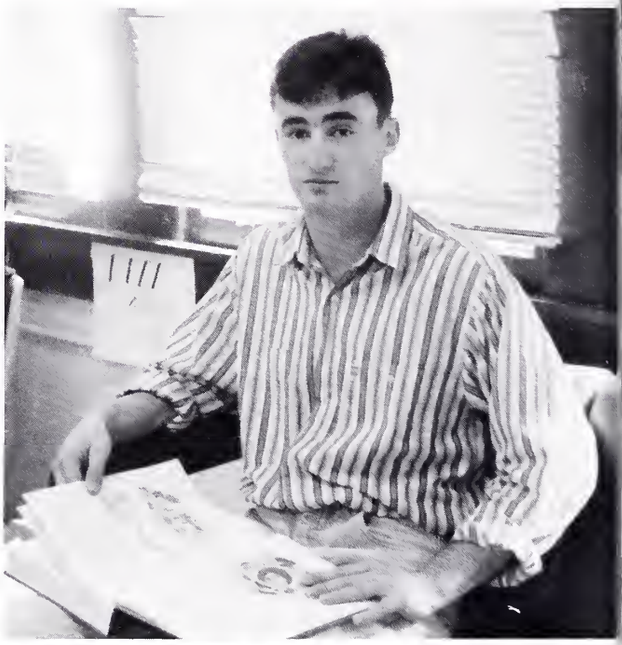
There's nothing like a good strong hot cup of coffee to get you going in the morning. Right, Faith Hutchins?



Is it wishful thinking on Johnny Pope's part?

Bruce Green warms up before facing Bullen in A & P.



"Just ask me; I know the answer," says Sherry Watkins.

Yearning For Learning

"Education is learning what you didn't even know you didn't know."

David Boorstin

The students at Co-Lin are eager beavers. They can't wait another minute to grab the books and the lecture notes. You'll find one of them studying in the usual places like the library, Hob Nob, or classrooms, but some put in those extra minutes of study in hallways, in the parking lot, on the sidewalks and even in the restroom.

These students are striving to be the very "best they can be" in their particular field of study. So they take the many hours of hard work and study in stride. They know that their hard work puts them a step closer to their goal.

"One more all night bout of studying will be the death of me," says Lindy Wilson.

Marketable Skills

The Business Technology Program at Co-Lin is a two year program. It's goal is "to train or retrain individuals who are marketable." Surveys indicate that employers are more likely to seek out personnel who possess the traditional business skills in proper communication, mathematics and human relations than those who do not possess such skills.

Mariea Torrey, along with Linda Davis, teach the Business Technology courses at Co-Lin / Natchez. In a period of four years Mariea says that she has seen the number of Business Technology majors increase from 35 to 56 students.

The Mark Of Experience

When you think about excellence and performance, one of the names that come to mind is Debra Stephens. Debra is the Associate Dean's Secretary. She has been a member of the Co-Lin/Natchez staff since August of 1988. Her duties consist of purchasing equipment and material for the campus, keeping the accounting records up-to-date, and performing other special assignments. Even though her job can be very demanding and stressful, she is always on top of everything.

When asked what she does to keep herself busy in her spare time, she replied that she enjoys, "Reading, swimming, camping, and watching a good movie, especially a good one with Kevin Costner starring in it."

Debra is the wife of Ronnie and the proud mother of a teenage daughter, Destiny.

Debra replied that the thing she likes most about Co-Lin is "the friendly, family-like atmosphere that makes her job a pleasure."

Other employees of Co-Lin attest to the fact that Debra contributes to this friendly atmosphere. She is quick to smile and give a friendly hello to all those who come in contact with her.

Even though Judy Wiggins keeps very busy as Director of the Learning Center and Instructor of English, she still finds time for a short visit with Willie Mae Dunn.

Right On The Mark

Student Government Association

SGA serves not only as the legislative body for the student population, but it also acts as a liaison between students and faculty. SGA is involved in many campus and community events. The association along with other clubs and organizations sponsored the Co-Lin Natchez balloon in the Natchez balloon race.

It passed out refreshments during Fall and Spring registration and during final exam week. It attended the SGA state conference held in Jackson. This was the first time that Co-Lin/Natchez students attended this conference.

The association also entered a float in the Natchez Christmas Parade. The group will again participate in the Mardi Gras parade and will host a Spring dance.

SGA's president, Polly Nettles, remarked that her goal as president was to "bring the student body closer together and to encourage more involvement in school social functions."

Based on student body involvement in SGA sponsored activities, it can be said that Polly's goal is "right on the mark".

Circle K

Circle K is one of the most active and giving organizations on campus. The group has hosted several events and fundraisers during the school year. However, the most important ones are those that help the needy.

In October, Circle K sponsored the annual blood drive. Over 42 students, faculty, and staff participated and gave the "gift of life". In December, the association took names off the Angel Tree at a local store to buy Christmas gifts for underprivileged children. Also in December, the group collected gift items for the elderly. Moreover, funds were given to a fellow student to help him defray medical expenses.

Circle K has also kept busy with a bake and doughnut sale. The group conducted a drawing for a pizza and helped in selling circus tickets. It also hosted a Christmas party for the student body.

Circle K will again this year assist with the Special Olympics, sell carnations for Valentine's Day and help decorate the Co-Lin Mardi Gras float.

Even with all the hustle and bustle that comes with Circle K being so active and involved, Tuttie Cater, President of Circle K can still smile, take a deep breath and say, "It has been a great challenge this year and it has been fun."

Shane Smith doesn't seem to find it hard to relax while giving blood. The problem appears to be that he can't stay awake.

Pizza Hut is "making it great' for Bridget Breithaupt and Tuttie Cater.

Licensed Practical Nursing

"We don't have to recruit." Blackwell continued. "Each year between 100 and 150 applications are taken, but only 30 slots are available." The program has become so popular that Co-Lin hopes to add a second class in the future.

From January to June applications pour in for the one year program. In July, the top 30 applicants are chosen. Classes begin in August with graduation the following August.

The retention rate is high in the LPN classes. LPN students also have a high passing rate on the National League Nursing exam and a placement rate of 95-100% each year.

"These students are hard working and dedicated," Blackwell said. "They have to successfully complete a year packed with six hours of class each day, as much homework, and the internships at the hospital, Whitfield, and the nursing homes."

Who's Who Among American Junior College Students

Michelle Good waits patiently for he next class.

The 1991-1992 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges will include the names of 27 students selected from the Natchez campus. All students named for this honor were nominated by faculty members from both the Washington and Beltline sites. They join a special group of students selected from various colleges throughout the United States, as well as from colleges located in several foreign countries.

Our Who's Who students demonstrate not only academic excellence, but leadership skills and abilities. They often give sound advice and guidance to their peers. They provide valuable services to both the institution of Co-Lin and the surrounding Natchez community.

We congratulate the winners of Who's Who for their outstanding work.

"Mr. Bullen is interested in the whole student."

John T. Bullen is coordinator of the science department of Copiah-Lincoln Community College, Natchez Campus, and teaches several courses in biological and chemical sciences. He holds his B.S. and M.S. degrees in microbiology from Mississippi State University where he was a President's Scholar. He has also had additional studies at Mississippi State University.

He has been a faculty member at Copiah-Lincoln Community College, Natchez Campus, since 1975. He also sponsors the college Circle K Club and is currently chairman of the scholarship committee. He holds membership in Phi Kappa Phi and the Natchez Kiwanis Club.

He was selected Star Teacher in 1975, listed in Outstanding Young Men of America in 1980, and was a nominee for Outstanding Young Educator in 1975 and the Chemical Manufacturers Association's Chemistry Teacher Award in 1983.

Mr. Bullen carries a long tradition of exemplary academic counseling for science majors. He is highly regarded by the students and respected by his colleagues.

In his leisure time he is an avid hunter.

Mr. Bullen and his wife, Pat, have one child, and they reside in Natchez.

James Eugene Wright Honored As Student Of The Year

"Gene is not only active in all phases of campus and community life, his academic standing is superior."

James (Geno) Eugene Wright, Jr., is a sophomore at Copiah-Lincoln Community College, Natchez Campus, majoring in pre-engineering. He was initiated into Phi Theta Kappa during his freshman year and serves as vice-president in 1991-1992. He is an active member of Circle K Club.

An honor-roll student, Mr. Wright was on the Dean's List each semester of his freshman year. He received the Physics Award of Outstanding Achievement in 1991 and will be listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges in 1992.

During his high school years, this 1990 honor graduate of Adams County Christian School earned numerous honors including salutatorian, Hall of Fame, DAR 1990 Good Citizen, Academic All-American, Beta Club, Who's Who Among American High School Students, the American Academy, and was elected by his teachers as Best All-Around High School Student in 1990. He was active in the Student Council, Key Club, Mu Alpha Theta, and the Catholic Youth organization, holding leadership positions in all of them. Additionally, he was a four-sport letterman. Upon graduation from high school, he was the recipient of several different monetary scholarship awards including the Lions Club and A. I. Rexinger Scholarships.

He has been an active solicitor for the Burn Center, the Natchez Children's Home, and a Stew Pot volunteer.

He is the son of Mrs. Perina G. Wright and the late James E. Wright of Natchez.

Student Support Services

Bettye Mullen, director of Student Support Services is active in state, regional and national organizations dedicated to giving assistance to handicapped, low income or first generation college students.

See us for a marked change in your academic career.

The Student Support Services Program provides students who are accepted into the program with supportive services including counseling, basic skills instruction, tutoring and information concerning college admissions and financial aid.

The purpose of Student Support Services is to identify qualified low income, first generation college students, or physically handicapped students who are enrolled by institutions that are recipients of grants. The program also provides support services for students who are pursuing post secondary education.

Here at Co-Lin, we provide service for over one-sixth of the student body. These students receive assistance in development and applications of study techniques, reading and math skills, and assistance in other disciplines upon request. A trained staff is available to serve these students.

"Educational Opportunity Is Our Number One Concern."

Judy Wiggins, SSS Learning Center Director, enjoys the hustle and bustle in the Center.

T-Shirts Set The Mood

Some of us want to look serious. Some of us just want to have fun. Some of us want to let others know how we feel without having to say the words. Some of us want to establish our identity, our mark. But whatever statement we are trying to make, we just mainly want to be comfortable.

It is hard to get a smile from Jeanne Yelverton, especially after she has visited the Hard Rock Cafe.

Mark Your Answer Sheet

Tests, tests, and more tests! There are true and false, multiple choice, essay, completion and matching tests. Help! What are the correct answers? We all have Excedrin headaches created by test anxiety. One part, in fact the major part, of our college lives revolve around taking endless numbers of tests. These tests may be announced or unannounced. How can anyone forget the infamous pop quizzes? Then there are class tests and take home tests. There are even open book tests. Sometimes it seems that instructors team up on us and schedule two or three tests the same day. Those of us who are wise have learned that the only way of conquering the phobia of test taking is to schedule our time wisely and of course study, study, study.

Mark My Words

Even though students readily participate in classroom discussions, they also anxiously await their dismissal. This is a time for them to talk about what they have just learned, yesterday's soap operas, the latest football and/or baseball game, or who is going with whom. Sometimes there is so much to catch up on it is hard for one person to talk without being interrupted by a friend who has her own version of the story.

X Marks The Spot

With the increased enrollment at Co-Lin Natchez finding a parking spot on campus is definitely like looking for buried treasure. Parking conditions are so strained that students have resorted to parking in any available spot ... on the grass, along the road, and under the trees. Security guard, John Inman, views the situation with a careful eye and a sigh of relief; for he is no longer required to search for automobile owners who have parked in an unauthorized area.

The Marks Of The World

The world may have its Mark Anthony and its Mark Twain, but we have our own special Mark on campus- Mark Benton McManus. Mark is the 22-year-old son of Joyce and Leonard McManus. He is a sophomore majoring in business and is making plans to transfer to Northeast Louisiana University in Monroe during the Fall of 1992. When asked what he does to keep himself entertained, he responded, "Horseback riding, shopping, and of course spending time with my babe."

Everyone on campus who knows Mark, knows that his babe is Rachel Porter, a freshman who is majoring in accounting. Yes, Mark Anthony had his Cleopatra and Romeo had his Juliet, but Mark has his Rachel, and while we may claim him as our special Mark we know he's truly Rachel's. When asked what makes him so special, Rachel replied, "He makes me laugh and he treats me better than anybody I've ever met."

Marking Time

Sometimes there seems to be so much activity going on on campus that it appears we are all moving our feet to the music of time or that we are all "spinning our wheels" and are not getting anywhere, or we are not accomplishing anything productive. As writer, Sherwood Anderson once penned, "Time is a slippery thing." When this feeling of just marking time hits, we often find ourselves sitting back daydreaming or engaging in "when I" conversations.

Sophomores usually engage in "when I graduate" conversations, while freshmen tend to engage in "when I get to be a sophomore" conversations. However, sometimes life has a way of playing tricks on us, because as we sense time slipping away from us and as we feel ourselves marking time, we often find ourselves wishing we could, as Jim Croce once sang, "Save time in a bottle."

Mark Your Choices

Decisions! Decisions! Decisions! Everywhere we go we are faced with having to make a choice. On registration day, we had to decide not only what classes we wanted to or had to take, but we also had to choose how many semester hours we would take. Then days, sometimes weeks later, we had to decide whether we were going to try and stick it out in a particular class or just "throw in the towel" and drop it. The month of September on campus was like November in the U.S. It was election time. Students were vying for offices in the various organizations. They were also running for homecoming maids, Mr. and Mrs. Co-Lin, and freshman and sophomore favorites. We were told to mark our ballots and make the right choice, and in October we had to decide whether or not we were going to give the "gift of life." And just when we thought we could sit back and relax, preregistration began!

Caught In The Act

Full schedules, after school jobs, studying, and for many family responsibilities leave very little time for the pursuit of such leisure activities as sleeping, romancing, eating, gossiping, catching a quick smoke, or just taking a break from it all. Students, faculty, and staff have discovered that when the opportunity to pursue the frivolous pastimes arise they risk being "caught in the act."

Carolyn Nolan was caught in the act of eating a non-nutritional meal.

Could we have possibly caught Nick Peterman in the act of slipping away to go hunting?

Joe Byrne was caught in the act of trying to hide from the camera while even though Edwardo Flechas turned his head, he couldn't resist smiling for the camera.

No Pain — No Gain

"One of the most difficult tasks of completing the yearbook is finishing the index. After a few days, you begin to wonder if you remember the alphabet!"

Gladys Rounds

EDITOR:	Rachel Cater
STAFF:	Leigh Kennedy	Pam Banks
	Karen Mills	Shannon Cater
	Gladys Rounds	Polly Nettles
	Sherita Melton	Bridget Willson

Gerri Brown's face says it all. It is the "Season of the Yearbook!"

Last Remarks

People all over campus "made their mark" this year in many different ways, and maybe sometimes without even realizing what they had done. Teachers helped students with their course work, students helped teachers with various projects, administrators made crucial decisions about the future of the college, and physical plant workers kept things running smoothly.

It was the students, however, that made the biggest mark because without them there would be no Co-Lin. Their first accomplishment, whether they know it or not, was in choosing Co-Lin to begin their college education.

Choosing Co-Lin was definitely the right decision for freshman Megan Riebock of Brookhaven who almost passed up the college for a university in Rhode Island.

She became one of the leading scorers for the Lady Wolves basketball team this season, and she said she has felt "right at home" here.

Riebock said, "The students are friendly, and the faculty members care about what happens to you, not only as a student but as a person too."

An all-around athlete, she lead the women's basketball team in assists with eight per game.

Riebock and her team members were the south divison regular season winners, but lost to Southwest in the south division tournament.

Their regular season finish bought them a berth in the Region 23 Tournament at Mississippi College. However, the Lady Wolves couldn't pull their game plan together, and they lost to Northeast.

" ... faculty members care about what happens to you ... "
Megan Riebock

Closing

Mark Your Favorite

As a teenager grows into an adult, he/she becomes an individual that has followed the examples of family members and friends. These examples form a person with a distinct and unique personality, and the examples followed by this year's campus favorites have formed them into special people that want to be good influences on others.

According to favorite Mendez Goldman of Natchez, people should try to have a good impact on others, but only if they are sincere.

She said, "You should be an example to others throughout your life, but only by being yourself, not my conforming to the ways of others."

Sandi Duncan of Monticello said that, as a campus favorite, she feels she has been a "pace setter" on campus because she's representing the college.

Friendship is also a key to having a positive influence on peers.

Goldman said, "You can't think of yourself as better than others. I try to treat others the way I want to be treated."

Lance Moak, a freshman favorite from Wesson, always has a smile on his face.

Three In A Row - Favorites who never miss a friendly chat are Mendez Goldman, left, Russ Fowler, and Sandi Duncan. Each has tried to set a good example on campus for others to follow.

Marks Of Technology

Advancements in computers and audio/visual equipment make college life easier with the touch of a button.

Technological improvements have changed the way students live and learn in the 20th century. These changes are "for-the-better," according to those who use this "high tech" equipment for anything from typing term papers to figuring a fund balance.

Janet Broome of Wesson, a computer science major, said that these advances in technology have made processing information much quicker and easier.

"It's now much more time efficient," she said.

Instructors have also seen the advantages of using this equipment to help students learn and to help ease their work loads.

Besides the use of computers, teachers use VCR's, cassette recorders, and slide projectors to get some of their information across to those in the classroom.

Many classes are taped with video recorders for use during absence of an instructor, and students in the art department learn about famous drawings and paintings from a slide projector screen. Biology classes "soak in" their course terms from chapter reviews on computer disks, and British literature students listen to Milton's "Paradise Lost" and Shakespeare's "Hamlet" on cassettes.

Teachers don't use the equipment as substitutes for textbooks or class time, but as complements to course material.

Freshman Patrick Richardson of Brookhaven does his homework on a computer in the college's Learning Center.

Carla Davis of Bogue Chitto memorizes famous paintings off a slide projection screen. The art department uses this equipment as a learning tool.

Football player Derral Lott of Mendenhall likes the computerized games such as "Meta Fox." These games line the walls of the Rec Hall and are constantly in use.

Newspaper staff member Kristi Hutchinson of Bogue Chitto types up her newspaper article for the week. Papers are much easier to correct on the computer than on the typewriter.

An employee with Communication Arts in Jackson checks his video camera before filming a Phi Theta Kappa "tapping ceremony" in a classroom. Co-Lin's chapter was featured on a national PTK video as one of the nation's most outstanding groups.

Pat Young, center, sponsor of the Trailblazers recruiting group, talks with prospective members at a luncheon in the Anderson Building. Young also works as a college counselor and coordinator of the Career Beginnings program which provides guidance for "middle-of-the-road" high school students.

Football Coach Randall Bradberry discusses a play with quarterback Allen Thomas of Bartow, Fla. Bradberry provides leadership for his players on and off the field.

Mark It Down!

The number one priority of faculty and staff members is to make sure students receive the best education possible.

Those that work at the college have important jobs to do, and their main objective is to see that students achieve while they're enrolled in classes on either the Wesson or Natchez campuses.

Computer science instructor Maurice Cammack said he finds his job rewarding.

"You're judged by what your students learn and carry with them," Cammack said.

Science teacher Dr. Doug Schexnayder agrees with Cammack and said he is dedicated to inspiring students to achieve.

He said, "Students must focus on their work, believe in themselves, and believe that the faculty wants them to do well."

Even though teacher pay in Mississippi is among the lowest in the nation, Cammack said that being a good instructor doesn't need a price tag.

"Money is not the reason we teach at Co-Lin, it's the enjoyment of teaching," he said.

Instructors provide students the opportunity to do well, according to Dr. Schexnayder, "but college is a lot like life — there's no guarantee."

Something For The Little Ones - Employees in the Administration Building always have goodies for toddlers from the Child Care Center on Halloween. Dr. Billy Thames, college president, watches the excitement outside his office as Gail Catchings and Marilyn Brown distribute balloons.
